But when the circumstances of their relationship change, they both know that their lives must also change. They cannot remain in the arena forever. They must escape. But will they be able to stay away? Or will the vicious Prime Minister Morbin best them in the end?

EXCERPT FROM BOOK A light popped on in the warehouse. Layla rubbed her eyes, but they were not playing tricks on her. There was definitely a light on in the warehouse. There were still functioning lights, electricity. It was a low floor window, but the light was undoubtedly on. It flickered like a badly connected incandescent, but it was there. The flickering light reflected in her eyes. Layla stood up at her desk and walked around it and out the front door of the agency. She walked across the street and towards the warehouse, expecting at any moment for the light to turn off, for it to be in her imagination or for someone to pop out and tell her she was on a prank TV show. But none of these things happened. Instead, as her steps drew closer and closer, when she was nearly on top of it, everything remained very much the same and very much tangibly real. The window was barred and only a few inches from the parking lot's surface. Layla knelt down and then laid flat on her stomach so that she could look effectively through the window. What greeted her through the window was too much to believe. There was no electric light on, but there was light. There was a floating orb near the window. It was giving off light but attached to nothing. It bobbed gently up and down, causing what Layla had thought was flickering. It seemed to have a mind of its own. The light, having a mind of its own, was further confirmed by the man who spoke to it. Stop bobbing so much. You're making it difficult for me to fix this. Just stay still. The man's back was turned and he was in the corner working on something. There was a toolbox open next to him on the floor. Layla watched as he held out his hand near the box and a tool shot into it as if by magic. She rubbed her eyes once more, confirming only that she was tired but not hallucinating. Layla was watching something otherworldly happen in the warehouse.

EXCERPT FROM BOOK Now we have a lot to cover, so let's get started. I suppose the best place to begin is why you are here You have always been meant to return here after seventeen years You were brought to Earth when you were a year old to become an ambassador to and historian of Earth for Pern You are a part of a program that gives babies to humans as gifts and then takes them back when they are of age using them for the information they have learned That s terrible Anka said Yes well we didn t quite realize how humans would feel about this at the time the project was started There have been a few issues Some parents like yours have gotten fairly attached to the Pernese children and don t exactly want to give them back And you didn t know that was going to happen The Pernese are a different sort of creature than humans who inhabit the earth We look the same to me Anka said rather obviously What s the difference other than the fact that we re green There is a biological difference For instance emotional spectrums are vastly different You may have noticed that your parents are endlessly hyperbolic in regards to how they feel about you They are not being hyperbolic They actually feel that way Wow Anka said I never knew that But I m fond of them as well Yes well we have found that Bernese who come out of this program are a tad different from the rest of us There seems to be some kind of effect You become a bit more like them from growing up with them Of course you are Bernese at heart so you will adapt Although as I told you you won t be kept from them You will be able to go back and see them Doesn t the fact that we are affected kind of change your theory about differences in biology Doesn t it mean we can change he said With all due respect of course
