Dry Beans and Pulses Muhammad Siddiq, Mark A. Uebersax, 2012-08-29

The common beans and pulses are diverse food resources of high nutritional value: protein, energy, fiber, and vitamins and minerals with broad social acceptance. These legume crops demonstrate global adaptability, genotypic and phenotypic diversity, and multiple means of preparation and dietary use. Beans and pulses are produced in regions as diverse as Latin America, Africa, Asia, and North America and on a scale similar to some other crops such as wheat, corn, rice, and soybeans. Numerous factors influence utilization including bean type and cultivar selection, cropping environment, and systems storage conditions and handling infrastructure, processing, and final product preparation. Nutrient content and bio availability are dramatically influenced by these conditions. In recent years, beans and pulses have been cited for imparting specific positive health potentiating responses such as hypocholesteremic response, mitigation of diabetes and colonic cancer, and weight control. Enhanced dry bean utilization focused on improved dietary health is an opportunity within both subsistent and developed populations. This book provides a contemporary source of information that brings together current knowledge and practices in the value chain of beans, pulses, production, processing, and nutrition. It provides in depth coverage of a wide variety of pertinent topics including breeding, postharvest technologies, composition, processing technologies, food safety, quality.
