Leverage Data Streams for Better Operational Decision-Making Christoph Prinz,2023-05-31 Smart sustainable mobility ecosystems promise to address society's expectation of environmentally friendly on demand mobility. While the technology stack to build such ecosystems is just around the corner in the form of connected, automated and electric vehicles, strategies to deploy and operate such fleets in a coordinated manner must still be advanced. Most of such optimization challenges highly depend on the nature of customer demand, vehicle supply and environmental influences. Hence, this dissertation investigates how available data streams from mobility ecosystems can be leveraged in Information Systems to solve related decision problems. The overarching goal of this work is to generate design knowledge to improve vehicle availability, provider profitability and environmental sustainability for such ecosystems. Applying quantitative methods to real world data from shared vehicle systems generates insights into the nature of demand and supply. Combining it with an analysis of empirical research on vehicle relocation algorithms builds the foundation for two artifact designs. The first artifact enables the development and simulation based evaluation of operation modes for vehicle fleets. The second artifact enables artificial intelligence based decision support for the vehicle rebalancing problem. The insights are finally incorporated and generalized to a nascent design theory on data enabled operational decision making in the context of smart sustainable mobility environments. The findings have multifaceted implications for researchers concerned with data enabled value creation in Green IS, shared economy and smart mobility and business analytics and data science. Furthermore, guidance for fleet providers to improve system attractiveness and for society to experience the potential amount of vehicle access without personal ownership is provided.

Autocar ,2005 Human Capital Management in the Wandering Context of Events - Challenges for the Managerial Staff Marzena Stor,2022-09-13 This monograph is the result of cooperation between twenty researchers from eleven Polish universities and is based on the assumption that both employees and HRM in organizations are increasingly subject to unprecedented contextualization The context is perceived as a phenomenon of a dynamic nature in which different stakeholders have to operate The dynamics of this context is so specific and so enormous that this context becomes a wandering context of events in which it is more and more difficult to make rational decisions The main goal of the monograph is to present empirical research findings and conceptual developments in selected HRM problems in various contexts As for these contexts the journey undertaken in this monograph begins with organizational contexts then virtual and digital followed by that of the pandemic and finally ends in a context strongly focused on people As the monograph is of a scientific and research nature it is dedicated to other researchers dealing with HRM issues as well as management students who would like to deepen their knowledge in this field and learn about the latest research At the same time the authors also hope that it may be interesting for management practitioners who are looking for inspiration to create effective solutions in their work with human capital
