Unisa Bed Past Exam Papers:

A Bed Called Home Mamphela Ramphele, 1993 In the last three years the migrant labor hostels of South Africa particularly those in the Transvaal have gained international notoriety as theaters of violence For many years they were hidden from public view and neglected by the white authorities Now it seems hostel dwellers may have chosen physical violence to draw attention to the structural violence of their appalling conditions of life Yet we should not lose sight of the fact that the majority of hostel dwellers are peace loving people who have over the years developed creative strategies to cope with their impoverished and degrading environment In this challenging study Dr Mamphela Ramphele documents the life of the hostel dwellers of Cape Town for whom a bed is literally a home for both themselves and their families Elaborating the concept of space in its many dimensions not just physical but political ideological social and economic as well she emphasizes the constraints exerted on hostel dwellers by the limited spaces they inhabit At the same time she argues that within these constraints people have managed to find room for manoeuvre and in her book explores the emancipatory possibilities of their environment The text is illustrated with a number of black and white photographs taken by Roger Meintjes in the townships and hostels

Methodological Approaches to STEM Education Research Volume 2 Peta J. White,Russell Tytler,Joseph Paul Ferguson,John Cripps Clark,2021-08-27 The COVID 19 pandemic has likely changed the mathematics health and environmental education research landscape in profound and long lasting ways As such more than ever there is a need to creatively and critically think about how we design research and for what purposes This necessitates a considered and robust discussion about educational research theory method and methodology to ensure that our research continues to impact practice in valuable ways This book maps out some of these key challenges and opportunities as we collectively enter a post COVID 19 world in which method and methodology need to be appreciated as much as research findings Topics explored here range from big picture issues in STEM Education research through perspectives on design based research to questions of analysis complexity the Delphi method and ethical dilemmas

experiences and moral geographies of women and their children in the city Alexandra Parker, Margot Rubin, 2017-11-30 South African cities were designed and legislated to enforce spatial marginalisation of Africans coloureds and Indians to peripheral urban settlements The legacy of this intentionally constructed racially segregated space has been reinforced in the post apartheid period by market forces around property prices informal settlement of land and the unintended consequences of state housing policy amongst other factors Patterns of race based spatial marginalisation have also been overlaid by income and gender factors creating hostile conditions for women and poor women in particular Whilst there is a rich mine of literature on spatial exclusions due to race very little study has focused on the gendered spatial experiences of women and more particularly mothers in South African cities Mothers sustain a number of multifaceted roles through and beyond the care of and provision for their children They engage in multiple spheres of work home education community and politics Straddling these various realms mothers are increasingly active users of a diversity of city spaces In some cases the daily routines of mothers are confined within a single neighbourhood but most often mothers enact their many roles on a day to day basis in many different areas of the city The nature of motherhood as both a relationship of care and a role constructed in society and highly unequal urban conditions often impose heavy burdens financial temporal and emotional However the choices mothers make in the city by traversing diverse spaces in order to fulfil their multiple roles and the responsibilities and costs this inflicts is not well understood This Occasional Paper speaks to this gap by exploring the spatial dynamics of mothers in Johannesburg It investigates how women who self identify as mothers navigate their own and their families daily lives in the city in facing a variety of challenges and obstacles Methodologically the research involved studying the everyday practices and experiences of 25 mothers in the city who agreed to in depth interviews and mapping exercises The participants were a diverse group in terms of geographic location income race age and family situation The women narrated their daily lives and the routes they took through various places and spaces that made up their everyday experiences of the city They discussed their decision making around the choice of home work school shopping and recreation and detailed the social and spatial dynamics of their support networks Exploring these moral geographies of motherhood provides valuable insights into a group of people who engage the city extensively in ways that are under recognised In turn understanding the spatial negotiations that typify mothers lives exposes the depth of spatial inequality and poor urban management of our city region in new ways This Occasional Paper is the result of a partnership between the South African Research Chair in Spatial Analysis and City Planning SA CP and the GCRO and specifically involved a collaboration between researchers Yasmeen Dinath Margot Rubin and Alexandra Parker The insights presented here reflect results from a first phase of research that will be deepened through a larger study in 2018 Applied Intelligent Systems John Fulcher, 2012-10-16 Humans have always been hopeless at predicting the future most people now generally agree that the margin of viability in prophecy appears to be 1 ten years Even sophisticated research endeavours in this arena tend to go 2 off the rails after a decade or so The computer industry has been particularly prone to bold and often way off the mark predictions for example I think there is a world market for maybe five computers Thomas J Watson IBM Chairman 1943 I have traveled the length and breadth of this country and talked with the best people and I can assure you that data processing is a fad that won't last out the year Prentice Hall Editor 1957 There is no reason why anyone would want a computer in their home Ken Olsen founder of DEC 1977 and 640K ought to be enough for anybody Bill Gates CEO Microsoft 1981 3 The field of Artificial Intelligence right from its inception has been particularly plagued by bold prediction syndrome and often by leading practitioners who should know better AI has received a lot of bad press 4 over the decades and a lot of it deservedly so How often have we groaned in despair at the latest by the year 20xx we will all have insert your own particular hobby horse here e g Proceedings of the 14th [sic] International Conference on Fluidized Bed Combustion Sarma V.
