

Demand for Labor (DL)		Labor Shortage		Marginal Revenue Product (MPR)
DL curve shows the number of workers a firm will hire at various wage rates. DL curve is downward sloping as more labor is hired the MP decreases due to diminishing marginal returns. DL curve is the MRP curve				Change in total revenue that occurs when an additional unit of an input is employed. "The additional amount of money that a worker makes for the company is his/her MRP." The total is derived from the price of the good produced and the marginal product. $MRP = P_Y \times MP_L$
Derived Demand	The amount of labor demanded depends on the demand for the product the firm produces. If the demand for supplies (products) increases the demand for people who make (supply) the supplies shifts up the DL labor curve.
Marginal Product (MP)	The additional good or produced by one additional unit of input. $MP_L = \text{extra marginal product}$ ex. workers are more productive due to two knowledge, productivity & their production workers & more money into the company ex. Labor P shifts up due to more workers.
Price of the Good (PY)	The revenue collected when the good is sold. If the demand for the good increases the P_Y ↑, if demand for the good decreases the P_Y ↓, the P_Y ↑ shifts the company's labor market demand curve to the right ex. P shifts up due to more workers.
Market Supply of Labor (SL)		Market Supply of Labor (SL)
Market Supply of Labor Curve shows the number of workers willing to work at various wage rates. As the wage increases the quantity supplied of labor increases. Upward sloping.				Market Supply of Labor (SL) The change in total revenue cost caused by the addition of one more unit of a resource. "The additional cost to the firm of hiring an additional worker." The elasticity coefficient (EL) curve is horizontal. $MRP = MRC = \text{Wage Rate} = SL$
Labor Market Equilibrium
Labor Market Equilibrium: Equilibrium is for workers, firms, workers, & hiring for work in a particular industry.
Labor Market Equilibrium		Perfectly Competitive Labor Market		Labor Price Graph
The wage is determined by the labor market. (DL) Downward sloping (SL) Upward sloping				"Wage Ceiling" The market controls the wage. (DL, MRP) Downward sloping (SL) Horizontal (perfectly elastic) as the firm hires all of the labor it wants at a set price.
Profit Maximization (MRP = MRC)
MRP = MRC		MRP = MRC		MRP = MRC

more labor resources are hired = MRP = MRC at Q_1		more labor resources (price = MRC)		more labor resources are hired = MRP = MRC at Q_1

Management Economics: An Accelerated Approach William G. Forgang, Karl W. Einolf, 2015-03-26 Thoroughly classroom tested this text is designed specifically for one semester accelerated and online courses at the upper undergraduate and MBA levels It is based on the theme that business and personal decisions are made within both micro and macro economic environments By understanding the environments and their effects on outcomes of decisions better choices can be made The text also differs from others in the area because it is less theoretical it provides a broader perspective for management problem solving and it bridges economics with other business disciplines Each chapter includes a management decision oriented case study that applies tools of economic analysis An online instructors manual is available to professors who adopt the text Cumulated Index Medicus ,2000

China's Regional Development Ming Lu, Zhao Chen, Zhu Xiwei, Xu Xianxiang, 2013-07-18 China is a large developing economy and it has been deeply involved in globalization since its economic reform and opening up Simultaneously China has seen a significant change in the spatial distribution of economic resources especially capital and labor In the recent 10 years economists have made significant progress in both theoretical and empirical studies on related topics The book provides an overview on the existing literature and current policy debates on what we have known and what we have misunderstood This book includes an analytical framework of the New Economic Geography NEG with political economy to help us understand China's regional development issues The book of 10 chapters is organized into four thematic sections The first section is a theoretical discussion on the relationship between economic agglomeration and interregional balanced development The second section is a political economy analysis on regional and urban rural development The third section provides a summary on empirical literatures concerning from market segmentation and institutional barriers to production factor mobility The final section consists of four empirical chapters on the relationship between agglomeration and balance which is the core of relevant policy debates The book argues that for China to achieve both efficiency and balance for regional development China may need to reform its systems which constrain production factors mobility This book is a valuable reference for readers who are interested in spatial economics and the Chinese economy especially its regional and urban development

Stating the Family Julie Novkov, Carol Nackenoff, 2020-05-07 Glance at a political party's platform catch a politician's speech sample the news and you will find the family not as a mere group of people living together in the private sphere but as a contentious entity at the center of political disputes and policy debates over everything from marriage equality and gender identity to immigration and welfare reform The key role of the family in politics and public policy so often relegated to the outer margins of political science and theory comes in for long overdue consideration in this volume Bringing together political scientists and legal scholars of wide ranging interests and perspectives Stating the Family explores the role of the family in American political development as a focus of political struggle a place where policy happens a means of distributing governmental goods and a way of relating individuals to the state and to each other in legal terms While the authors gathered here examine important policy questions that relate to the family including immigration welfare citizenship partisanship and ideology they pay particular attention to changes in family structures and responsibilities in light of the rise of neoliberalism Illustrated with case studies some contemporary some historical their essays provide individual takes on different links between family and politics creating a nuanced conversation on this complex topic The result is a multifaceted view of the family s place in the development of American political institutions and a unique understanding of the work that family does to structure politics and that politics does to structure families
