Scholarly Research Paper from the year 2011 in the subject Sociology Gender Studies grade A Ewha Womans University Graduate School of International Studies course Gender and Development language English comment Many thanks to the Graduate School of International Studies Ewha Womans University abstract One of the generally agreed techniques likely to facilitate high reductions of incidences of domestic violence among women is to empower them through education This is because education has been regarded as the most significant instrument for changing women s subjugated position in the society It not only develops the personality and rationality of individuals but qualifies them to fulfill certain economic political and cultural functions and hence improves their socio economic status The Zimbabwean case reveals that men and women with more than secondary education are less likely to justify domestic violence However the Zimbabwean case is peculiar in the sense that domestic violence permeates the whole society regardless of educational levels Educated men and women perpetrate and experience domestic violence respectively irrespective of their educational levels It is in this regard that this paper sought to establish why this is so by scrutinizing the education curriculum as well as analyzing whether the legal framework has contributed to reducing domestic violence Papers and Proceedings American Sociological Society,1915
