Mackintosh, Geoffrey Banda, Watu Wamae, Paula Tibandebage, 2016-02-03 This book is open access under a CC BY license The importance of the pharmaceutical industry in Sub-Saharan Africa its claim to policy priority is rooted in the vast unmet health needs of the sub-continent Making Medicines in Africa is a collective endeavour by a group of contributors with a strong African and more broadly Southern presence to find ways to link technological development investment and industrial growth in pharmaceuticals to improve access to essential good quality medicines as part of moving towards universal access to competent health care in Africa The authors aim to shift the emphasis in international debate and initiatives towards sustained Africa based and African led initiatives to tackle this huge challenge Without the technological industrial intellectual organisational and research related capabilities associated with competent pharmaceutical production and without policies that pull the industrial sectors towards serving local health needs the African sub-continent cannot generate the resources to tackle its populations needs and demands Research for this book has been selected as one of the 20 best examples of the impact of UK research on development See <http://www.ukcds.org.uk> the global impact of UK research for further details Development Naivety and Emergent Insecurities in a Monopolised World Munyaradzi Mawere, 2018-09-17

It is common knowledge that development without security is like a runaway horse Yet development in Africa has been plagued by insecurities since the extractive periods of slave trade and colonialism In spite of political independence and the euphoria of sovereignty as states Africa has failed to address insecurity which continues to loom large and to threaten aspirations towards truly inclusive and sustainable development A consequence has been Africa's development naivety vis-à-vis the monopolisation of development by the predatory elite actors of the global North and their local facilitators To salvage the continent from such predation and the insecurities engendered requires novel and innovative imagination and praxis This book draws from both the haunted landscapes and bitter memories of past exploitations and from the feeding of the insatiable North with African resources and humanity It brings together essays by a concerned generation of scholars driven by the urgent need for radical decolonisation of African development and its legacies of insecurities It is handy to students and practitioners in economics policy studies political science development studies global and African studies
