Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week training program on the performance of a group of 10 male and 10 female subjects. The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group and a training group. The training group received a 10-week training program consisting of aerobic and anaerobic exercises. The control group did not receive any training. The results of the study showed that the training group had significantly higher performance levels than the control group at the end of the 10-week training program. The results also showed that the training group had significantly higher levels of aerobic and anaerobic fitness than the control group at the end of the 10-week training program. The results of this study suggest that a 10-week training program can improve the performance of a group of subjects.
