

Scientific Report Structure

The scientific report is written after you complete your investigation. This is the final product that you submit to your teacher for marking. It is important your report should be written in good time and in the planned order that the your supervisor needs each of the following sections

Title	Write a title that describes the aim of the experiment and your report to class
	The title should state your result in the theory about your experiment. You can use the given in text in the report and scientific notation about in your investigation	Background Information
Aim	The aim states the aim and the purpose of your investigation
	The hypothesis is a predicted outcome of your experiment that is based on your own knowledge	Hypothesis
Method	The method section of your report should include specific details about what you did in your experiment. Include all information about your equipment, including materials, ingredients, measurements etc. You should also explain that you used how you set your experiment and include any relevant diagrams for the equipment used in the experiment
	The results section contains what you found during your experiment. Use tables, graphs and images to display your results. You can also include several comments in discussion if you wish. You can also show you complete any calculations and so the average, standard deviation, standard error etc	Results
Discussion	In the discussion you are explaining and interpreting your results. The discussion is also a place for reflection. Things you might be asked to think about are as follows: - Was the hypothesis correct? - Do the results match the hypothesis and reason? - What were the main sources of error in the experiment? - How could the error have affected the results? - How could these be improved in the future? - What are the implications of the results for the future?
	There is a short summary of the investigation at the end and you also should be confident that it is the correct length	Conclusion
References/Bibliography	Remember that it is important to acknowledge the sources of your information. The teacher advises you to do this. It is important that you use the correct format and so always use a word document that you save for the job. Check with your teacher what part of the job you should provide and if you need it, it is possible to bring your own
