Learning to Serve Maureen E. Kenny, Lou Anna K. Simon, Karen Kiley-Brabeck, Richard M. Lerner, 2001-12-31 Service learning as defined by the editors is the generation of knowledge that is of benefit to the community as a whole This seventh volume in the Outreach Scholarship book series contributes a unique discussion of how service learning functions as a critical cornerstone of outreach scholarship The sections and chapters of this book marshal evidence in support of the idea that undergraduate service learning infused throughout the curriculum and coupled with outreach scholarship is an integral means through which higher education can engage people and institutions of the communities of this nation in a manner that perpetuate civil society The editors through this series of models of service learning make a powerful argument for the necessity of engaged institutions

Higher Teaching and Learning for Alternative Futures Yusef Waghid, Faiq Waghid, Judith Terblanche, Zayd Waghid, 2021-05-29 This book analyses the narratives of four academics who consider themselves post structuralist Grounded in the work of major thinkers in post structuralism these narratives reflect on higher education as a community of scholars without community The authors highlight what specifically motivates their pedagogical affirmations and orientations analyse why they are concerned with social justice education and what they envisage the alternative futures of higher education to be that is futures in which discrimination oppression violence and inequality are waning or have been eradicated Through their own narratives the authors tackle the educational matter of poststructuralist human encounters and expand upon the notion of social justice education In doing so they argue for higher education on the African continent as an alternative discourse that can be responsive to political societal and environmental dystopias
