- PROSTATE The prostate gland is a small, walnut-sized organ located just below the bladder and in front of the rectum. It is the only gland in the male reproductive system that is not part of the testes. The prostate gland is responsible for producing and secreting prostatic secretions, which are mixed with sperm to form semen. The prostate gland is also responsible for controlling the flow of urine from the bladder through the urethra. The prostate gland is a common site for prostate cancer, which is the most common cancer in men. Prostate cancer is often diagnosed through a prostate-specific antigen (PSA) test, which measures the level of PSA in the blood. PSA levels are typically higher in men with prostate cancer than in men without the disease. Treatment for prostate cancer may include surgery, radiation therapy, or hormone therapy, depending on the stage of the disease and the patient's overall health.
