How to resolve problems

Introduction

Make sure that the required Windows (XP) software is installed.
When using Windows XP, configure connection settings on both using the built-in Network of Windows XP and the Windows (XP) software to establish connection. It allows connecting to wireless LAN and the connection speed is 54 Mbps (IEEE 802.11b) or 11 Mbps (IEEE 802.11g).

If a problem occurs, select the following problem in question to find a solution.

Cannot connect to the Internet

Cannot open the Access Point home page (setup page)

Cannot connect to the Internet after changing Access Point settings

Case 1 Cannot connect to the Internet

The connection between the computer and Access Point or the link between the Access Point and Internet Service Provider (ISP) may not be established.

① Check wireless link between computer and Access Point.

- Under the "Status" tab in Wireless Panel, is the Network Name shown as "Not Connected"?
 - ➔ Check
If any connection is established with a wireless computer (or IEEE 802.11b/g), the link in the system may not indicate "Connected". All connections to Access Point are established successfully and assigned with encryption in WEP or other mode, but connection without key assigned will be "Not Connected" (see p. 17 of February, 2003).
 - If the Windows XP Wireless Panel shows the "Status" tab with "Not Connected" or "Not Connected", there may be a network problem that computer settings. Confirm the settings as described below. If the IP address does not start with "192.168.1..." and not "0.0.0.0", there may be a problem with the settings for the wireless link between the computer and the Access Point. Refer to "Changing the settings for the wireless link between the computer and the Access Point" in this document.
 - Check the data encryption (WEP) setting at the Access Point to which you want to connect.
 - Click the "Network List" tab in the Wireless Panel.
 - Modify the settings for the network shown as "Not Connected", and reconnect.
 - ➔ Windows XP, Windows 2000

Icon with key indicates network for which data encryption is enabled.
Icon without key indicates network for which data encryption is not enabled.

The "Configuring Network" dialog box appears.

- Change the settings according to the settings in the Access Point and click "Next".

Encryption key (WEP key)

➔ Check

When displaying the "Configuring Network" dialog box for selecting "Setup Wizard" or the "Setting" tab, if you select "Manual Setup", follow the connection of the network to design settings.

The computer connects to the Access Point with the next settings.

- Windows XP
 - ➔ Under Windows XP, the setting is made in the "Configuring Network" dialog box. For details, refer to the "Configuring Network".
- Click the "Status" tab in the Wireless Panel and verify that the IP address does not start with "192.168.1..." and is not "0.0.0.0".
The connection between computer and Access Point should now be correct.
- ➔ Check
When settings are set, check that the computer only after the connection between computer and Access Point has been established properly. If unable to connect to the Internet, perform the above steps first, to ensure that communication between computer and Access Point functions correctly.
- Network Name indication does not show "Not Connected", but IP address starts with "192.168.1..." or is "0.0.0.0".
There may be a problem with the data encryption settings. If connection to the Access Point for which data encryption is enabled has attempted but cannot connect, the computer may be the problem. Refer to "Configuring the Wireless Panel" in the Windows XP manual for the correct connection to set encryption key. Access Point IP address should be changed (the IP address is shown as "192.168.1..." or "0.0.0.0").
Enter the correct encryption key (WEP key) as described in ② above, and reconnect.

② Is the wireless link set up to act as a network bridge? (Windows XP only)

- Click "Start", point to "Connect To", and click "Show all connections".
- Confirm that the wireless network connection in question is not acting as a network bridge.
- If the wireless network connection is configured as a network bridge, right-click the corresponding icon, and click "Remove".

③ Check wireless link between Access Point and Internet Service Provider (ISP).

Refer to connection information provided by your ISP to configure the Access Point. For details, contact technical support of the ISP. They may not provide any support regarding this issue.

- The "AP Setting" button under the "Status" tab of the Wireless Panel can only be used in conjunction with the Access Point PCWA-A700 (see of February, 2003).

- Even when using the Access Point PCWA-A700, clicking the "AP Setting" button results in the message "There was the response from that access point. Possible reasons include: the access point is located too far away; the access point may not be configured to respond; the access point may be turned off." In such a case, communication may be unstable.
Don't enable the connection between computer and Access Point is not successful, and refer to them as any obstacles that may impact upon connection. Check that the computer and Access Point are connected and then click the "AP Setting" button again.

- When using Windows XP, opening the Access Point home page (setup page) may not be available if the Internet Connection Firewall function has been enabled.

- Click "Start", point to "Connect To", and click "Show all connections".
- Right-click the Wireless Network Connection icon to which you want to connect, and click "Properties".
- Click the "Advanced" tab and (if selected) check the "Protect my computer and network by limiting or preventing access to this computer from the Internet" check box.
- Click "OK".

➔ Check

Under Windows XP, click "Start" to check that the Internet Connection Firewall.

For wireless connection to connect correctly after the "Internet Connection Firewall" function is enabled, except when configuring the Windows XP Access Point, it is strongly recommended that you refer the Internet Connection Firewall function of XP manual.
