Sony Tv Repair 2011:

Meta Television Erin Giannini, 2024-03-18 The idea of metatextuality is frequently framed as a recent television development and often paired with the idea that it represents genre exhaustion US television however with its early live performances and set bound sitcoms always suggested an element of self awareness that easily shaded into metatextuality even in its earliest days Meta Television thus traces the general history of US television s metatextuality throughout television s history arguing that TV s self awareness is nothing new and certainly not evidence of a period of aesthetic exhaustion but instead is woven into both its past and present practice elucidated through case studies featuring series from the 1970s to the present day many of which have not been critically analyzed before and the various ways they deploy metatext to both construct and deconstruct their narratives Further Meta Television asserts that this re and de construction of narrative and production isn t just a reward to the savvy and or knowledgeable viewer or consumer but seeks to make broader points about the media we consume and how we consume it This book explores the ways in which the current metatextual turn in both the usual genres in which it appears horror and sci fi fantasy and its movement into drama and sitcom represents the next turn in television s inherent self awareness It traces this element throughout television s history growing from the more modest reflexivity of programs awareness of themselves as created objects in a particular medium to the more significant breaking of the fictive illusion and therefore the perceived distance between the audience and the series Erin Giannini shows how the increased currency of metatextual television in the contemporary era can be tied to a viewership well versed in its stories and production as well as able and willing to talk back via social media If television reflects culture to a certain extent this increased reflexivity mirrors that responsive audience as a consequence of the lack of distance that metafiction embraces As Robert Stam traced the use and implications of reflexivity in film and literature this book does the same for television further problematizing John Ellis s glance theory in terms of both production and spectatorship

Television in the Age of Radio Philip W. Sewell, 2014-02-13 Television existed for a long time before it became commonplace in American homes Even as cars jazz film and radio heralded the modern age television haunted the modern imagination During the 1920s and 1930s U S television was a topic of conversation and speculation Was it technically feasible Could it be commercially viable What would it look like How might it serve the public interest And what was its place in the modern future These questions were not just asked by the American public but also posed by the people intimately involved in television s creation Their answers may have been self serving but they were also statements of aspiration Idealistic imaginations of the medium and its impact on social relations became a de facto plan for moving beyond film and radio into a new era In Television in the Age of Radio Philip W Sewell offers a unique account of how television came to be not just from technical innovations or institutional struggles but from cultural concerns that were central to the rise of industrial modernity This book provides sustained investigations of the values of early television amateurs and enthusiasts the fervors and worries about competing technologies and the ambitions for programming that together helped mold the medium Sewell presents a major revision of the history of television telling us about the nature of new media and how hopes for the future pull together diverse perspectives that shape technologies industries and audiences

Video Revolutions Michael Z. Newman, 2014-04-15 Since the days of early television video has been an indispensable part of culture society and moving image media industries Over the decades it has been an avant garde artistic medium a high tech consumer gadget a format for watching movies at home a force for democracy and the ultimate ubiquitous means of documenting reality In the twenty first century video is the name we give all kinds of moving images We know it as an adaptable medium that bridges analog and digital amateur and professional broadcasting and recording television and cinema art and commercial culture and old media and new digital networks In this history Michael Z Newman casts video as a medium of shifting value and legitimacy in relation to other media and technologies particularly film and television Video has been imagined as more or less authentic or artistic than movies or television as more or less democratic and participatory as more or less capable of capturing the real Techno utopian rhetoric has repeatedly represented video as a revolutionary medium promising to solve the problems of the past and the present often the very problems associated with television and the society shaped by it and to deliver a better future Video has also been seen more negatively particularly as a threat to movies and their culture This study considers video as an object of these hopes and fears and builds an approach to thinking about the concept of the medium in terms of cultural status
