Drifting through the wind, wanting to start again?

Do you ever feel already buried deep?

Six feet under screams but no one seems to hear a thing

Do you know that there's still a chance for you?

'Cause there's a spark in you

You just gotta ignite the light and let it shine

Just own the night like the 4th of July

Like a lightning bolt, your heart will glow

And when it's time you'll know

Technological Animation in Classical Antiquity Tatiana Bur, Maria Gerolemou, Isabel Ruffell, 2024-09-24 The persistent desire to animate inanimate objects has been a recurring theme in European culture dating back to ancient Greek and Roman times Technological Animation in Classical Antiquity aims to establish for the first time the significance of this aspiration and its practical realization within Greek and Roman societies While certain aspects of this narrative have been explored previously this study shifts the focus to place technological animation at the forefront The sixteen chapters examine the tangible existence of such devices across various media and considers their roles in diverse contexts delving into the reciprocal relationship between technological and material realities and its influence on the concept of animation and vice versa By adopting this perspective technological animation not only provides a new understanding of the processes behind animation but also lends a fresh perspective to the animated artifact In contrast to other types of animation where the technologically animated artifact is often dismissed as a perceptual error induced for instance by rhetoric or magic this study separates technological animation from notions of rhetorical or magical skills theurgy or divine intervention Specifically it concentrates on a subset of artificial animation solely produced through technical procedures exploring how various motive forces actively contributed to giving objects agency and impacting their viewers illuminating how the material conditions of the artifacts themselves played a role in the process of technological animation whether through the distinctive materiality of bronze or the design of a statuette s hinge

Constituent and Pattern in Poetry Archibald A. Hill, 2014-07-03 Constituent and Pattern in Poetry is a collection of essays on literature and language It is built on the assumption that works of literature have existence in the real world and that they may be analyzed in a fashion that is not totally subjective Using models derived from structural linguistics Archibald A Hill presents a number of theoretical contributions to the study of poetry as well as new ways of looking at specific poems The book as a whole provides an overview of the tools and ideas Hill has developed for analyzing works of literature and it is the first time the essays have been gathered together in one volume The book is divided into three sections Definition of Literature and Study of Its Patterns Types of Meaning and Imagery and Principles for Interpreting Meaning Each section opens with a theoretical essay followed by three essays that work analytically with specific poets and poems using the methods defined in the first In his examination of such poets as Hopkins Browning Milton Blake Keats and Dickinson Hill uses such proposals as the law of least lexical contribution and maximal contextual contribution the hypothesis that when possible meanings occur together in a cluster they support each other and the idea that it is sometimes possible to recover underlying language sequences from which the author has departed for identifiable reasons By applying these suppositions to the study of particular poems Hill shows how the reader may arrive at statements about the relative artistic merit of works of literature
