Ice Ages, Climate Dynamics and Biotic Events: The Late Pennsylvanian World S.G. Lucas, W.A. DiMichele, S. Opluštil, X. Wang, 2023-06-19 The Late Pennsylvanian was a time of ice ages and associated climate dynamics A major reduction in Gondwana ice volume was followed by a prolonged period of relative global warmth culminating in the last great ice age of the late Paleozoic It also was a major turning point in the evolution of life on land when the coal forests of the Middle Pennsylvanian gave way to new kinds of Late Pennsylvanian wetland vegetation and new kinds of animals appeared Changes in the terrestrial biota began during the Middle Pennsylvanian accelerating and proceeding in a spatially complex manner throughout the Late Pennsylvanian The Late Pennsylvanian is thus a laboratory for studying environmental changes in a glacial world and for assessing coeval biotic changes in part to establish the possible links between the two No book has been dedicated to this time interval so this volume fills a gap in our understanding of a dynamic Late Pennsylvanian world that is much like the late Cenozoic world

The Ashgate Research Companion to the Thirty Years' War

Olaf Asbach, Peter Schröder, 2016-03-23 The Thirty Years War 1618 1648 remains a puzzling and complex subject for students and scholars alike This is hardly surprising since it is often contested among historians whether it is actually appropriate to speak of a single war or a series of conflicts Similarly emphasis is also put on the different motives for going to war as conflicting religious and political interests were involved This research companion brings together leading scholars in the field to synthesize the range of existing research on the war which is still fragmented and divided along national historical lines and to further explore the complexities of the conflict using an innovative comparative approach The companion is designed to provide scholars and graduate students with a comprehensive and authoritative overview of research on one of the most destructive conflicts in European history

Your Computer Is on Fire Thomas S.

Mullaney, Benjamin Peters, Mar Hicks, Kavita Philip, 2021-03-09 Technology scholars declare an emergency attention must be paid to the inequality marginalization and biases woven into our technological systems This book sounds an alarm we can no longer afford to be lulled into complacency by narratives of techno utopianism or even techno neutrality We should not be reassured by such soothing generalities as human error virtual reality or the cloud We need to realize that nothing is virtual everything that happens online virtually or autonomously happens offline first and often involves human beings whose labor is deliberately kept invisible Everything is IRL In Your Computer Is on Fire technology scholars train a spotlight on the inequality marginalization and biases woven into our technological systems

The Rise and Fall of OPEC in the Twentieth Century Giuliano Garavini, 2019-07-25 The Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries OPEC is one of the most recognizable acronyms among international organizations It is mainly associated with the oil shock of 1973 when prices of petroleum quadrupled and industrialized countries and consumers were forced to face the limits of their development model This is the first history of OPEC and of its members written by a professional historian It carries the reader from the formation of the first petrostate in the world Venezuela in the late 1920s to the global ascent of petrostates and OPEC during the 1970s to their crisis in the late 1980s and early 1990s Formed in 1960 OPEC was the first international organization of the Global South It was perceived as acting as the economic spearhead of the Global South and acquired a role that went far beyond the realm of oil politics Petrostates such as Venezuela Nigeria Algeria Saudi Arabia Iraq and Iran were and continue to be key regional actors and their enduring cooperation defying wide political and cultural differences and even wars speaks to the centrality of natural resources in the history of the twentieth century and to the underlying conflict between producers and consumers of these natural resources

Democratization from Above Anjali Thomas Bohlken, 2016-01-11 Democratization from Above seeks to explain why some national and state governments in the developing world introduce reforms to make local governance more democratic while others neglect or actively undermine democracy at local levels of government The study challenges conventional wisdom that local democratization is implemented as a means of granting more autonomy to local actors Instead Anjali Thomas Bohlken argues that local democratization offers higher level government elites who lack control over party organizational networks an alternative means of increasing the effectiveness of local intermediaries on whom these elites rely to mobilize political support The book starts with a focus on India and uses original data and a combination of qualitative and quantitative evidence to show support for the argument The study then relies on an original cross national dataset to show how the argument helps explain the variation in the implementation of local democratization reforms across the developing world

The Case for Business in Developing Economies Ann Bernstein, 2012-10-03 Business is increasingly being called upon to demonstrate what more it does for society In a climate in which companies are frequently painted as social outlaws who need fundamentally to change their ways this determined if ill founded attack has been met for the most part by appeasement in corporate circles This acquiescence has given rise to the burgeoning corporate social responsibility industry Why is business going along with this The current conversation about business and society is dominated by the perspectives and interests of those who live in rich western countries Many activists analysts and others do not grasp the realities of poverty and the hard choices of development outside the industrialised world As a result the debate about business responsibility and corporate involvement in development is distorted with few voices from developing countries being heard and the positive contribution of just doing business almost completely unacknowledged In this book Ann Bernstein argues that a new approach and a new discourse are required to cut through an increasingly flawed conversation with potentially dangerous consequences for the poor and for developing countries in particular Informed by many years of living working and championing the role of business in growth and development in a middle income developing country Bernstein urges business not to let the attacks stand unchallenged It must find the confidence and strategic vision to stop apologising develop its own public agenda and start propagating the phenomenal benefits of competitive capitalism for the less developed countries of the world

Dingo Bold Rowena Lennox, 2021-01-01 Dingo Bold is a thought provoking exploration of the relationship between people and dingoes At its heart is Rowena Lennox's encounter with a dingo on the beach on K gari Fraser Island a young male she nicknames Bold Struck by this experience and by the intense often polarised opinions expressed in public conversations about dingo conservation and control she sets out to understand the complex relationship between humans and dingoes Weaving together ecological data interviews with people connected personally and professionally with K gari's dingoes and Lennox's expansive reading of literary historical and scientific accounts Dingo Bold considers what we know about the history of relations between dingoes and humans and what preconceptions shape our attitudes today Do we see dingoes as native wildlife or feral dogs Wild or domesticated animals A tourist attraction or a threat And how do our answers to these questions shape our interactions with them Dingo Bold is both a moving memoir of love and loss through Lennox's observations of the natural world and an important contribution to wider conversations about conservation and animal welfare Combining natural history Indigenous culture folklore memoir and environmental politics this is an elegantly written and affectionate tribute to Australia's most maligned and least understood native animal Jacqueline Kent Fuelled by empathy curiosity and passion and informed by research data and observation this moving and compelling book speaks to the heart and to the head Rowena Lennox poses questions about our relationship with dingoes and our role in the natural world that are as bold and lively as her subject Debra Adelaide

Race Decoded Catherine Bliss, 2012-05-23 In 2000 with the success of the Human Genome Project scientists declared the death of race in biology and medicine But within five years many of these same scientists had reversed course and embarked upon a new hunt for the biological meaning of race Drawing on personal interviews and life stories Race Decoded takes us into the world of elite genome scientists including Francis Collins director of the NIH Craig Venter the first person to create a synthetic genome and Spencer Wells National Geographic Society explorer in residence among others to show how and why they are formulating new ways of thinking about race In this original exploration Catherine Bliss reveals a paradigm shift both at the level of science and society from colorblindness to racial consciousness Scientists have been fighting older understandings of race in biology while simultaneously promoting a new grand scale program of minority inclusion In selecting research topics or considering research design scientists routinely draw upon personal experience of race to push the public to think about race as a biosocial entity and even those of the most privileged racial and social backgrounds incorporate identity politics in the scientific process Though individual scientists may view their positions differently whether as a black civil rights activist or a white bench scientist all stakeholders in the scientific debates are drawing on memories of racial discrimination to fashion a science based activism to fight for social justice

A Contest of Ideas Nelson Lichtenstein, 2012-09-30 For more than thirty years Nelson Lichtenstein has deployed his scholarship on labor politics and social thought to chart the history and prospects of a progressive America A Contest of Ideas collects and updates many of Lichtenstein's most provocative and controversial essays and reviews These incisive writings link the fate of the labor movement to the transformations in the shape of world capitalism to the rise of the civil rights movement and to the activists and intellectuals who have played such important roles Tracing broad patterns of political thought Lichtenstein offers important perspectives on the relationship of labor and the state the tensions that sometimes exist between a culture of rights and the idea of solidarity and the rise of conservatism in politics law and intellectual life The volume closes with portraits of five activist intellectuals whose work has been vital to the conflicts that engage the labor movement public policy and political culture
