

Mid-term Exam Study Guide
HIST 103: Foundations of America
Spring 2024
Value: 200 points (20% of final grade)

The mid-term exam will be administered in class on Wednesday, February 28. I will bring blue books for you to use to write your exam. There will be two parts of the exam. The first will ask you to write an essay answering one of the questions listed below. On the day of the exam, I will select one of these questions. You will answer it in a well-written, well-organized essay that uses an abundance of information from assigned readings, lectures, and discussions to support your answer. The purpose of giving you this list of potential questions is to focus your study, help you prepare, and write a good essay. The second part of the exam will be a list of seven terms (important concepts, people, events, documents) covered in readings, lectures, and discussions. You will select five of these and write a paragraph on each, defining the item and discussing its significance. Each section will be worth 100 points.

Potential Essay Questions

1. Compare and contrast the founding and development of the Massachusetts Bay colony with the Virginia colony during the 17th century (1600s); consider religion, economic systems, relations with Native Americans, ethnic composition, population growth, and class structure in your answer. By 1700, which colony was more successful? Explain why?
2. Why did colonies like Virginia, Maryland, and South Carolina develop a strong demand for unfree labor while demand was weaker in New York and Pennsylvania and much weaker in New England? What were the most important sources of unfree labor in the 17th century? How and why did that change after 1700? When and why did enslaved Africans become the largest group of unfree labor?
3. A variety of cultures came together in the English North American colonies between 1607 and 1776: Native Americans, Africans, English, Germans, French, Spanish, and Scots-Irish. How did these groups and interactions among them influence the development of English North America? How did these interactions affect members of these groups? When Jefferson asserted in the Declaration of Independence that "all men are created equal and endowed with certain unalienable rights," was he describing American society? Explain.
4. Looking at American society in 1800, explain the social, economic, political, military, and legal factors that placed Native Americans and African Americans in a position subordinate to (i.e., subject to control by) Whites and describe the ways in which they were subject to White domination. Were there events or historical developments that offered opportunities for Native Americans and African Americans to challenge their subordination. If there were, what were they and how effective were these in giving Blacks and/or Native American greater rights?

Jarrick, Janken Myrdal, Maria Wallenberg Bondesson, 2016-01-07 Methods in World History is the first international volume that systematically addresses a number of methodological problems specific to the field of World History. Prompted by a lack of applicable works, the authors advocate a considerable sharpening of the tools used within the discipline. Theories constructed on poor foundations run an obvious risk of reinforcing flawed assumptions and of propping up other more ideological constructions. The dedicated critical approach outlined in this volume helps to mitigate such risks. Each essay addresses a particular issue, discussing its problems, giving practical examples, and offering solutions and ways of overcoming the difficulties involved. The perspectives are varied, the criticism focussed, and a common theme of coalescence is maintained throughout. This unique anthology will be of great use to advanced scholars of World History and to students entering the field for the first time.

Active participation in processes of change are an essential aspect of community participation, and proper recognition of opportunities for participation facilitate community engagement nationally and internationally. Education and its relation to citizenship in recent years has become one of the most important fields of research. From different areas and contexts, it has been revealed that there is a prevailing need for education for citizens to take part actively in the processes of change and improvement that the current global situation requires. The Handbook of Research on Education for Participative Citizenship and Global Prosperity is a pivotal reference source focusing on the productions and fields of study that are carried out all over the world on education for citizenship, namely the devices that provide young people with the consciousness and highlight the aspects of an active democratic life. While highlighting topics such as citizenship, identity, educational policy, and social justice, this publication explores participation, instruction, as well as the methods of community involvement. This book is ideally designed for educational administrators, policymakers, researchers, professionals, and educators seeking current research on instructional methods for teaching active community and political involvement.
