Creating Historical Memory Beverly Boutilier, Alison Prentice, 2011-11-01 Canadian women have worked individually and collectively at home and abroad as creators of historical memory This engaging collection of essays seeks to create an awareness of the contributions made by women to history and the historical profession from 1870 to 1970 in English Canada Creating Historical Memory explores the wide range of careers that women have forged for themselves as writers and preservers of history within outside and on the margins of the academy The authors suggest some of the institutional and intellectual locations from which English Canadian women have worked as historians and attempt to problematize in different ways and to varying degrees the relationship between women and historical practice The authors raise many interesting questions about how gender influences historical consciousness and whether looking at the past through women s eyes alters the view Women engaged in history in a wide variety of ways as authors of fiction popular history juvenilia and drama as well as more academic research and publishing They worked as individuals as both professional writers and academics and within formal and informal communities of women such as religious groups or local clubs The essays also talk about the barriers that existed for women who wanted to be recognized as historians and teachers of history and point out how gender differences have coloured perceptions of what constitutes history and who should write that history This anthology shows how instead of being intimidated or defeated by their marginalization women developed new and interesting ideas about what constituted history The final essay in the volume assesses the impact the burgeoning of feminist history in the 1970s had on the academy and examines the connection between feminist activism and women s history This original and lively book highlights the pioneering efforts of women in developing alternate paths to historical expression It makes an important contribution both to Canadian historical studies and to women s and gender history in the West and will appeal to scholars interested in Canadian history women s studies literature and historiography Academy and Literature Charles Edward Cutts Birch Appleton, Charles Edward Doble, James Sutherland Cotton, Charles Lewis Hind, William Teignmouth Shore, Alfred Bruce Douglas, Ellis Ashmead-Bartlett, Thomas William Hodgson Crosland, 1901 The Complete Lynch David Hughes, 2014-04-30 After working with David on his previous work for the series The Complete Kubrick we knew we were on to a winner for this book Not only is David Lynch a master of modern film making but David Hughes is well qualified to write this complete book The book covers all Lynch s films including Mulholland Drive TV and other projects as well as the unrealised ventures such as Revenge of the Jedi later directed by Richard Marquand as Return of the Jedi It also includes a foreword by Barry Gifford the novelist behind Wild at Heart and co writer with Lynch of the screenplay for Lost Highway and excerpts from a new interview David Hughes carried out with David Lynch himself The Complete Lynch is the only comprehensive study of this great director The Book of Memory Mary J. Logic and the Art of Memory Paolo Rossi,2000-12-15 The mnemonic arts and the idea of a universal language that would capture the essence of all things were originally associated with cryptology mysticism and other occult practices And it is commonly held that these enigmatic efforts were abandoned with the development of formal logic in the seventeenth century and the beginning of the modern era In his distinguished book Logic and the Art of Memory Italian philosopher and historian Paolo Rossi argues that this view is belied by an examination of the history of the idea of a universal language Based on comprehensive analyses of original texts Rossi traces the development of this idea from late medieval thinkers such as Ramon Lull through Bruno Bacon Descartes and finally Leibniz in the seventeenth century The search for a symbolic mode of communication that would be intelligible to everyone was not a mere vestige of magical thinking and occult sciences but a fundamental component of Renaissance and Enlightenment thought Seen from this perspective modern science and combinatorial logic represent not a break from the past but rather its full maturity Available for the first time in English this book originally titled Clavis Universalis remains one of the most important contributions to the history of ideas ever written In addition to his eagerly anticipated translation Steven Clucas offers a substantial introduction that places this book in the context of other recent works on this fascinating subject A rich history and valuable sourcebook Logic and the Art of Memory documents an essential chapter in the development of human reason
