Water and Cognition in Early Modern English Literature Nicholas Helms,Steve Mentz,2025-10-01 Water and cognition seem unrelated things the one a physical environment and the other an intellectual process The essays in this book show how bringing these two modes together revitalizes our understanding of both Water and especially oceanic spaces have been central to recent trends in the environmental humanities and premodern ecocriticism Cognition including ideas about the extended mind and distributed cognition has also been important in early modern literary and cultural studies over the past few decades This book aims to think water and cognition as distinct critical modes and also to combine them in what we term watery thinking Water and Cognition brings together cognitive science and ecocriticism to ask how the environment influences how humans think and how they think about thinking The collection explores how water as element as environment and as part of our bodies affects the way early modern and contemporary discourses understand cognition

The Arthur of the English W R J Barron,2020-11-15 This first comprehensive treatment of Arthurian literature in the English language up until the end of the Middle Ages is now available for the first time in paperback English people think of Arthur as their own stamped on the landscape in scores of place names echoed in the names of princes even today Yet some would say the English were the historical Arthur s bitterest enemies and usurpers of his heritage The process by which Arthurian legends have become an important part of England s cultural heritage is traced in this book Previous studies have concentrated on the handful of chivalric romances which have given the impression that Arthur is a hero of romantic escapism This study seeks to provide a more comprehensive and insightful look at the English Arthurian legends and how they evolved It focuses primarily upon the literary aspects of Arthurian legend but it also makes some important political and social observations
