Innovation and Tourism Destination Development Henrik Halkier,Marek Kozak,Bo Svensson,2017-10-02 Tourism is a central part of regional development strategies in many localities around Europe not just in traditional coastal or mountain resorts but also in areas without a strong track record with regard to visitor economy In a globalising world destinations can no longer take their traditional visitors for granted and escape growing competitive pressures because increasingly experienced specialised and demanding travellers now have a vastly greater number of potential destinations to choose from Both well established and emerging tourist destinations are therefore under pressure to be innovative to increase their attractiveness in the globalising visitor economy This book focuses on the role played by tourist destinations conceived as multi layered and functional governance structures in stimulating or complicating the development of new tourist experiences The complex relationship between firm level and territorial development dynamics is of course by no means confined to tourism development and the book will therefore be of a more general relevance for research into innovation and spatial development dynamics This book was published as a special issue of European Planning Studies

Local Economic Development Impacts of International Backpacker Tourism to Third World Destinations Till Albrecht Müller,2011-03-29 Inhaltsangabe Introduction In the past two decades backpacker tourism has grown vastly throughout both developed and developing world Particularly to south and Southeast Asian countries the phenomenon of backpacking is not new so to India where it dates back to the 60 s and 70 s hippy drifters to which backpacking is often associated It has been since the publication of the Lonely Planet s Yellow Bible Southeast Asia on a Shoestring in 1975 that backpacking has gradually emerged as a mass travel style Today popular travel yourself literature cover almost every corner of the globe serving a steady demand for off the beaten path travel Thereby to backpackers the developmental background of a destination plays a lesser role than to the mainstream tourist who is demanding certain infrastructural arrangements As a result backpackers are found in utmost remote and low developed locations that other tourists never reach Thus backpacker enclaves have emerged in many places throughout the world and not without effects on their hosting environments While social impacts often carry negative connotations hosting communities do usually appreciate backpackers for their economic contributions Objectives and Scope of this paper In recent years backpacker tourism has profoundly been studied in developed contexts particularly Australia and New Zealand are to be seen the pioneering regions of independent travel research having undertaken strenuous efforts to study the same within the past two decades As a consequence both destinations have recognized the economic value of low budget travel to their countries and established backpacker tourism as high yielding segments within their national tourism markets In both countries backpacking has since undergone shift from de marketing to a marketing label Though in recent years international research has made numerous successful attempts to study backpacker tourism in less developed contexts many tourism officials in third world destinations as yet refuse to accept the economic reach coming along with low budget travel Instead a majority of administrative instances promote upscale and regulated forms of tourism to be the way forward neglecting any concerns with regard to necessary infrastructure or initial investments Though only a fraction of developing nations do actively restrict independent travel to their territories e g Maldives Bhutan a majority at best tacitly ignores the
