

5 – Specialized Cells – Cell Detective Activity

The cell theory states that every cell comes from a previously existing cell. You started life as a single fertilized egg. A towering maple tree also started as a single cell. The many cells in a complex organism are not all identical, however.

1. Read all the clues below carefully. Match the description of each specialized cell with the terms from the word bank.
2. Match the description of each specialized cell with the images on the page.

		Word Bank
Nerve cell	White blood cell	Fat cell	Bone cell	Muscle cell
Red blood cell	Goblet cell	Skin cell	Sperm cell
Inside my cells I have many tiny sacs that contain toxic chemicals. I use these chemicals to destroy damaged cells in the body and dangerous invaders that have entered the body. I have many finger-like extensions that help me to move around and grab onto my prey so that I may engulf and destroy them.	I am one of millions of tiny cells that look like a tadpole. I have a long flagellum that whips around and propels me forward, and a tiny nucleus head with a nucleus inside. My midsection is packed with mitochondria to supply me energy. I carry only half the DNA of a body cell.	My cells have many layers and are well suited for protecting the body. The deep cell layers are round, a little square or elongated. They continuously divide and push new formed cells towards the top surface. As cells move toward the top surfaces they become thinner and thinner.
I contain a protein called hemoglobin that makes me turn red when I absorb oxygen. My cell membrane is very flexible and is concave – like a disc that has been pinched in the middle. This allows me to fit through small spaces. I do not have a nucleus.	My cells protect the body from cold, provide padding from physical injury and store a white oil substance which is an important form of energy storage. I am round and cloudy looking because of the oily substance I contain inside. My nucleus is pushed to the outer edge of the cell membrane because of the large vacuole I contain.	I have a large star shaped cell body with small finger-like extensions that make connections and receive input messages from surrounding cells and tissue. I also have a longer and thicker extension that carries information in the form of electrical impulses to other parts of the body or to other cells of my kind.
I grow in multi-layered columns that look like growth rings in a tree. I have a large blood vessel in each of my columns that travels through a central hollow tube. My tiny cells are on the outside of each ring and they have thin finger-like extensions that extend through the hard layers towards the central blood vessel.	When you look at me under a very high-powered microscope you can see contracting fibres inside my cells. These fibres look like rows of step-ladders. They extend from one end of my cells to the other and they shorten and return to normal length with signals from the brain. My nucleus is usually found pushed against the edge of the cell membrane.	My cells are long and tube-like and well suited for sucking in nutrients and digestive juices. Nutrients are absorbed into columnar cells from the thin membrane that faces the inside of the digestive tube. The nucleus is elongated and is found near the bottom of the cell at the opposite end.

Baynes,2015-04-10 Originally published in 1940 this classic study of two schizophrenic case histories further opened up the seemingly intractable problem of this condition a task preceded by Jung s own Psychology of Dementia Praecox It was Baynes s grasp of the meaning of the symbol coupled with his wide scholarship that enable him to explore the case histories in such remarkable and fruitful depth thus linking pathological psychology through graphic expression and the dream of the myths of mankind and the universal man This was truly a scientific task In case 1 the series of dreams fantasies and active imagination fully illustrated by the patients spontaneous paintings suggested to him a kind of mythological imagery Baynes then demonstrates the emergence and development of a hero myth together with its therapeutic effect upon the patient as an inner personal experience of death and rebirth Baynes also applied the methods of synthesis to the understanding of modern art and its reflection of the spirit of the times a realization of the basic split in the socio religious structure of European Culture In case 2 the subject was an artist and out of his own split he seemed to have created a symbolic bridge that would be a therapeutic bridge for himself and a possible model for curing the evil of the times in which we then were living Management of the Airway, An Issue of Atlas of the Oral and Maxillofacial Surgery Clinics Henry H. The Future Designer Michael Leube,2024-06-19 During periods of environmental and societal upheaval design has the potential to be a formidable catalyst towards a sustainable future However to unleash its full power significant shifts in both theory and practice are imperative This book adopts a unique approach blending anthropological perspectives with philosophy and cognitive science and advocates for a thorough transformation of the existing design curriculum Supported by a vast body of literature in evolutionary science and design research the book presents a blueprint for fostering more sustainable patterns of production and consumption This blueprint is grounded in human virtues rather than vices and proposes a new curriculum tailored towards pro sociality and sustainability Leveraging his extensive professional background and expertise in the circular economy Michael Leube offers practical examples methods and tools for implementing sustainable approaches in the practical work of experienced designers Showcasing cutting edge innovations for pro social and humanitarian design the book ultimately argues that if we change the objective of design from creating desire to creating value we can solve many of the most pressing social problems from the cooperation of citizens to sustainable cities The book will be useful for those studying and teaching design and anthropology and it will also be an important tool for practicing designers and engineers interested in learning how to design for social and ecological awareness

Developmental Psychobiology Elliott M. Blass, 2012-12-06 ELLIOTT M BLASS Fifteen years have passed since the first volume on developmental psychobiology Blass 1986 appeared in this series and 13 since the publication of the second volume Blass 1988 These volumes documented the status of the broad domain of scientific inquiry called developmental psychobiology and were also written with an eye to the future The future has been revolutionary in at least three ways First there was the demise of a descriptive ethology as we had known it to be replaced first by sociobiology and later by its more sophisticated versions based on quantitative predictions of social interactions that reflected relatedness and inclusive fitness Second there was the emergence of cognitive science including cognitive development as an enormously strong and interactive multidisciplinary effort Making the functional brain more accessible made this revolution all the more relevant to our discipline In the laboratory immunocytochemical detection of immediate early genes such as c-fos now allows us to trace neuronal circuits activated during complex behaviors The functional brain of primates especially humans was also made very accessible through neuroimaging with which we can look at and into brains as they solve and attempt to solve particular tasks Those of us who were trained in neurology as graduate students two or three decades ago recognize only the people in white coats and patients in beds or on gurneys when we visit neurological units today The rest is essentially new
