Results of the Second National Children and Youth Fitness Study (NCYFS II) conducted by the Public Health Service in 1985 are examined in this series of research articles. Initial analyses of the data indicate that the physical fitness of children ages 6 to 9 is significantly associated with activity behaviors of the children and their parents; that children weigh more and have more body fat than they did 20 years ago; and that only about one third of early elementary students take daily physical education classes. Topics examined in the research articles include 1) project history and design, 2) study procedures and quality control methods, 3) sample design, 4) new health-related fitness norms, 5) changes in the body composition of children, 6) the status of physical education programs in grades 1 through 4, 7) the contribution of home and community to children's exercise habits, and 8) the association between selected school, community, and home physical activity factors and health-related fitness. Actions that may enhance the future fitness and physical activity habits of children are considered. Journal of Sports Medicine and Physical Fitness, 2005
