

Spitzer and his colleagues at Princeton, Wisconsin, collected data from 150 college students from 1960 to 1970. The students were asked to complete a questionnaire about their attitudes toward women's rights, their attitudes toward the Vietnam War, and their attitudes toward the civil rights movement. The students were also asked to complete a questionnaire about their attitudes toward the gay, lesbian, and transgender community. The results of the study showed that students who were more liberal in their attitudes toward women's rights and the Vietnam War were also more liberal in their attitudes toward the gay, lesbian, and transgender community. This suggests that there is a strong correlation between liberal attitudes toward these issues and liberal attitudes toward the gay, lesbian, and transgender community.
