Abstract: The authors report on a study of the effects of a 10-week, 12-session, group-based, self-help program for people with chronic low back pain. The program was designed to help people learn to manage their pain and improve their quality of life. The program was evaluated using a randomized controlled trial design. The results of the trial showed that the program was effective in reducing pain and improving quality of life. The program was also found to be cost-effective. The authors conclude that the program is a valuable tool for the management of chronic low back pain.

Independent Variable	The variable that is changed or manipulated.
Dependent Variable	The variable that is changed as a result of the manipulated variable.
Constant	The variable that remains the same in each and every trials.
Control	An experiment without variables.
Quantitative	Data recorded as a numerical value.
Qualitative	Data recorded without has a descriptive value (language).
Hypothesis	A proposed scientific explanation for a set of observations.
Theory	A set of statements or principles devised to explain a group of facts or phenomena, especially one that has been repeatedly tested or is widely accepted.
Law	A statement that describes invariable relationships among phenomena under a specified set of conditions.
Inference	An interpretation based on prior knowledge.

Abstract: Staphylococcus aureus is a Gram-positive bacterium that is a common cause of skin and soft tissue infections. It is also a leading cause of hospital-acquired infections. The bacterium is known for its ability to form biofilms, which are communities of bacteria that are attached to a surface and encased in a protective matrix. Biofilms are difficult to treat with antibiotics, and they can cause persistent infections. In this study, we investigated the effect of silver nanoparticles on the growth of S. aureus and its ability to form biofilms. Silver nanoparticles were synthesized using a green synthesis method and characterized using UV-Vis spectroscopy and electron microscopy. The nanoparticles were then tested against S. aureus in a disk diffusion assay and a biofilm assay. The results showed that silver nanoparticles have a strong antibacterial effect on S. aureus and inhibit its ability to form biofilms. The minimum inhibitory concentration (MIC) of the nanoparticles was determined to be 12.5 µg/ml. The biofilm assay showed that the nanoparticles significantly reduced the formation of biofilms in a dose-dependent manner. These findings suggest that silver nanoparticles may be a promising alternative to antibiotics for the treatment of S. aureus infections.

Timothy M. Gieseke, 2016-08-05 Sustaining our agricultural landscapes is no longer just a technical scientific or even political problem but it has evolved into a socially complex so called wicked problem of conflicting social governance and economics. This creates an extreme economic obstacle where the value of ecosystem services remains low and diffuse and the transactions costs remain high and multiple. Using Uber like business platform technology and a shared governance model a symbiotic demand for environmental benefits is created. Enabling multi sector transactions for environmental benefits this platform innovation would remedy the tragedy of the commons the economic nemesis to achieving landscape sustainability. In a nutshell to sustain our agricultural landscapes a transdisciplinary approach supported by a shared governance model housed within a multi sided platform is needed. This book introduces an assessment framework identifying governance actors styles and ratios for socio ecological systems. The assessment uses a new governance compass to identify the types of actors completing which tasks and identifies the styles of governance used to complete the tasks. It is aimed to anyone involved in sustainability science agricultural policy planning or integrated landscape design.

The Geometry of Genocide Bradley Campbell, 2015-10-29 In The Geometry of Genocide Bradley Campbell argues that genocide is best understood not as deviant behavior but as social control a response to perceived deviant behavior on the part of victims Using Donald Black s method of pure sociology Campbell considers genocide in relation to three features of social life diversity inequality and intimacy According to this theory genocidal conflicts begin with changes in diversity and inequality such as when two previously separated ethnic groups come into contact or when a subordinate ethnic group attempts to rise in status Further conflicts are more likely to result in genocide when they occur in a context of social distance and inequality and when aggressors and victims cannot be easily separated Campbell applies his approach to five cases the killings of American Indians in 1850s California Muslims in 2002 India and 1992 Bosnia Tutsis in 1994 Rwanda and Jews in 1940s Europe These case studies which focus in detail on particular incidents within each instance of genocide demonstrate the theory s ability to explain an array of factors including why genocide occurs and who participates Campbell s theory uniquely connects the study of genocide to the larger study of conflict and social control By situating genocide among these broader phenomena The Geometry of Genocide provides a novel and compelling explanation of genocide while furthering our understanding of why humans have conflicts and why they respond to conflict as they do
