A Radical Worker in Tsarist Russia Semen Kanatchikov, Reginald E. Zelnik, 1986 Semen Kanatchikov born in a central Russian village in 1879 was one of the thousands of peasants who made the transition from traditional village life to the life of an urban factory worker in Moscow and St Petersburg in the last years of the nineteenth century Unlike the others however he recorded his personal and political experiences up to the even of the 1905 Revolution in an autobiography First published in the Soviet Union in the 1920s this memoir gives us the richest and most thoughtful firsthand account we have of life among the urban lower classes in Imperial Russia We follow this shy but determined peasant youth's painful metamorphosis into a self educated skilled patternmaker his politicization in the factories and workers circles of Moscow and St Petersburg and his close but troubled relations with members of the liberal and radical intelligentsia Kanatchikov was an exceptionally sensitive and honest observer and we learn much from his memoirs about the day to day life of villagers and urban workers including such personal matters as religious beliefs family tensions and male female relationships We also learn about conditions in the Russian prisons exile life in the Russian Far North and the Bolshevik Menshevik split as seen from the workers point of view

The Tsar's Abolitionists Liubov Kurtynova-D'Herlughnan, 2010-05-20 This book presents a well documented and important analysis of slavery and slave trade in the Caucasus within the fascinating contexts of Russian empire building and emerging imperial identity of the Russian state as well as of the local political strategies of Caucasian political actors The author offers a compelling multi layered analysis that is accessible to comparativists since it presents an important comparative case for slavery and its abolition which helps us understand slavery in the broader contexts of both
