Shape of the Nation Report National Association for Sport and Physical Education, 2006. For nearly 20 years the National Association for Sport and Physical Education (NASPE) has been conducting the Shape of the Nation Report every few years to summarize information for the profession and the public regarding the status of physical education in the American educational system. The preeminent national authority on physical education and a recognized leader in sport and physical activity, NASPE is partnering on the 2006 Shape of the Nation Report with the American Heart Association (AHA), a national voluntary health agency whose mission is to reduce disability and death from cardiovascular diseases and stroke. This joint project is important to both organizations because in a time of increasing health risks and health care costs in America, prevention is key and exemplary physical education programs must be part of the solution for inactivity, obesity, and related chronic diseases. The challenge of the first Shape of the Nation Report in 1987 continues in this latest survey. That is, typically state mandates are broad and general, leaving many specifics open to interpretation. The purpose of this Shape of the Nation Report is to provide current information about the status of physical education in each state and the District of Columbia. This report will not only bring attention to the importance of quality daily physical education programs for all school-age children, it will also provide information that can be used as a basis for expanding and improving physical education programs in those states that need assistance. The vision is that every student will become physically educated and thus possess the knowledge, skills, and confidence to be physically active and healthy for a lifetime. Appended are: 1. National Standards and Guidelines for K-12 Physical Education; 2. Federal Legislation Impacting Physical Education; 3. The Fight for Physical Education in the States; and 4. Public Policy Agenda for Physical Education Research. This project was also sponsored by the volunteers and leaders of the American Heart Association.

Five Miles Away, A World Apart James E. Ryan, 2010-08-06. How is it that half a century after Brown v. Board of Education, educational opportunities remain so unequal for black and white students, not to mention poor and wealthy ones? In his important new book Five Miles Away, A World Apart, James E. Ryan answers this question by tracing the fortunes of two schools in Richmond, Virginia: one in the city and the other in the suburbs. Ryan shows how court rulings in the 1970s limiting the scope of desegregation laid the groundwork for the sharp disparities between urban and suburban public schools that persist to this day. The Supreme Court, in accord with the wishes of the Nixon administration, allowed the suburbs to lock nonresidents out of their school systems. City schools, whose student bodies were becoming increasingly poor and black, simply received more funding, a measure that has proven largely ineffective while the independence and superiority of suburban schools remained sacrosanct. Weaving together court opinions, social science research, and compelling interviews with students, teachers, and principals Ryan explains why all the major education reforms since the 1970s including school finance litigation school choice and the No Child Left Behind Act have failed to bridge the gap between urban and suburban schools and have unintentionally entrenched segregation by race and class As long as that segregation continues Ryan forcefully argues so too will educational inequality Ryan closes by suggesting innovative ways to promote school integration which would take advantage of unprecedented demographic shifts and an embrace of diversity among young adults Exhaustively researched and elegantly written by one of the nation's leading education law scholars Five Miles Away A World Apart ties together like no other book a half century's worth of education law and politics into a coherent if disturbing whole It will be of interest to anyone who has ever wondered why our schools are so unequal and whether there is anything to be done about it Urban Educational Leadership for Social Justice Jeffrey S. Brooks, Melanie C. Brooks, 2015-06-01 The chapters in Urban Educational Leadership for Social Justice International Perspectives constitute a collection of works that explore dynamics related to equity in multiple contexts Authors examined these issues in Turkey Egypt the United States Thailand and at a global level by comparing and contrasting school leadership practice across borders Considered as a whole these papers explore various topics that will be at the forefront of educational research for years to come Increasingly educational leadership understand that there are important lessons to be learned internationally and globally This book includes important research conceived from these perspectives Our hope is that individually and collectively they might contribute to our understanding of international and global issues in educational leadership and that they will extend challenge and deepen extant lines of inquiry and begin others We Are the Ones We Have Been Waiting For Peter Levine, 2015 In September 2011 two leading civic engagement advocacy organizations headed respectively by Robert Putnam and Peter Levine released a joint report showing that a region's level of civic engagement was a strong predictor of its ability to recover from the Great Recession This finding confirms what advocates of civic engagement have long hypothesized that strengthening the networks between government and civil society and increasing citizen participation results in better government and better community outcomes However citizens concerned about the economic crisis need more than just deliberation or community organizing alone to achieve these outcomes What they need according to Peter Levine is a movement devoted to civic renewal Deliberative democracy the idea that true democratic legitimacy derives from open inclusive discussion and dialogue rather than simple voting has become an extremely influential concept in the last two decades In We Are the Ones We Have Been Waiting For Peter Levine contends that effective deliberative democracy depends upon effective community advocacy Deliberation he shows is most valuable when talk and debate are integrated into a community's everyday life To illustrate how it works Levine draws lessons from both community organizing and developmental psychology and uses examples of successful efforts from communities across America as well as fledgling democracies in Africa and Eastern Europe By engaging in this type of civic work American citizens can meaningfully contribute to civic renewal which in turn will address
