What's new: The authors have identified a new type of cell that may be involved in the development of the brain. The cell is called a "neural stem cell" and is found in the hippocampus, a region of the brain that is involved in learning and memory. The authors found that these cells are able to differentiate into neurons, which are the cells that transmit signals in the brain. This discovery could have important implications for understanding the development of the brain and for treating neurological disorders.

Abstract
This paper presents a new method for the automatic detection of the onset of a seizure. The method is based on the analysis of the EEG signal. The onset of a seizure is detected by the analysis of the power spectrum of the EEG signal. The power spectrum is calculated by the Fast Fourier Transform (FFT) method. The power spectrum is then analyzed by the method of the power spectrum ratio (PSR). The PSR is calculated by the ratio of the power spectrum of the EEG signal to the power spectrum of the reference signal. The reference signal is the power spectrum of the EEG signal before the onset of the seizure. The PSR is then compared with a threshold value. If the PSR is greater than the threshold value, the onset of a seizure is detected. The method is applied to the EEG signal of a patient with epilepsy. The results show that the method is able to detect the onset of a seizure with a high accuracy.
