What You Don't Know about Leadership, But Probably Should Jeffrey A. Kottler, 2018 We live in a world of groups Almost every facet of daily existence whether sitting in meetings collaborating with coworkers attending classes or programs contributing to community or social events participating in family gatherings even enjoying coffee or meals with friends takes place in group contexts In addition everyone finds themselves in leadership positions at one time or another responsible for the welfare of others It is curious but nevertheless commonplace that counselors therapists teachers business leaders executives coaches and other helping professionals who have been specifically trained in group leadership often fail to apply their knowledge and skills to settings in which they might matter most The same practitioners who guide others may not be able or willing to put that background to work when they find themselves supervising peers leading meetings or even managing conflict at the dinner table Many if not most people experience required meetings and mandated group collaborations as tedious repetitive and often a waste of time that could be spent doing other things that feel far more productive

Making a Scene in the Pulpit Alyce M. McKenzie, 2018-10-23 How can preachers ensure that their sermons continue to engage listeners in a world defined by visual media and the short segmented delivery of information Alyce McKenzie harnesses the element of drama and the human fascination with scenes to offer ministers a modern means of sermon development and delivery McKenzie's core strategy is to invite listeners into scenes whether from Scripture or contemporary life and once they are there to point them toward the larger story of God's relationship with humankind Creating such scenes unifies the whole process of preaching she says from the preacher's daily life observations to interpretation of scenes from Scripture to sermon shaping sequencing and delivery The process culminates in a specific understanding of the purpose of the sermon to send listeners out into the scenes they'll play in their lives for the next week equipped to act out their parts in ways that are kinder more just and more courageous than last week

You Never Step into the Same Pulpit Twice Ronald J. Allen, 2022-06-23 This volume develops an approach to preaching that brings together two important forces One is process theology and the other is a homiletic of conversation based on mutual critical correlation In this approach the preacher does not unilaterally announce the Word of God but is the leader of an exciting conversation involving the biblical text process theology the congregation and voices from the larger world The preacher seeks to help the congregation identify God's invitations towards inclusive well being and to imagine how to respond in ways that are consistent with those invitations that promote inclusive well being The book begins with a crisp and clear summary of the worldview of process theology highlighting its distinctive views on how God operates in the world through invitation and on the interrelationship of all things The work then outlines an approach to biblical exegesis informed by process perspectives and sketches a method for bringing the biblical voice into dialogue with voices from tradition contemporary theology and the congregation and preacher The volume suggests shaping the sermon to honor process theology and conversation The volume concludes by noticing how perspectives from process and conversation help the preacher embody the sermon in engaging ways
