Taking Haiti Mary A. Renda, 2004-07-21 The U S invasion of Haiti in July 1915 marked the start of a military occupation that lasted for nineteen years and fed an American fascination with Haiti that flourished even longer Exploring the cultural dimensions of U S contact with Haiti during the occupation and its aftermath Mary Renda shows that what Americans thought and wrote about Haiti during those years contributed in crucial and unexpected ways to an emerging culture of U S imperialism At the heart of this emerging culture Renda argues was American paternalism which saw Haitians as wards of the United States She explores the ways in which diverse Americans including activists intellectuals artists missionaries marines and politicians responded to paternalist constructs shaping new versions of American culture along the way Her analysis draws on a rich record of U S discourses on Haiti including the writings of policymakers the diaries letters songs and memoirs of marines stationed in Haiti and literary works by such writers as Eugene O'Neill James Weldon Johnson Langston Hughes and Zora Neale Hurston Pathbreaking and provocative Taking Haiti illuminates the complex interplay between culture and acts of violence in the making of the American empire innovative archive of twentieth century texts marked by their break with conventional literary structures These understudied resources mix genres as in the memoir ethnography travel narrative Tell My Horse by Zora Neale Hurston and eschew linear narratives as illustrated in the book length non narrative poem by M Nourbese Philip She Tries Her Tongue Her Silence Softly Breaks Such an aesthetics which protests against stable categories and fixed divisions both reveals and obscures that which it seeks to represent the experiences of Black women writers in the African Diaspora Drawing on postcolonial and feminist scholarship in her study of authors such as Jackie Kay Elizabeth Alexander Erna Brodber Ama Ata Aidoo among others Pinto argues for the critical importance of cultural form and demands that we resist the impulse to prioritize traditional notions of geographic boundaries Locating correspondences between seemingly disparate times and places and across genres Pinto fully engages the unique possibilities of literature and culture to redefine race and gender studies Samantha Pinto is Assistant Professor of Feminist Literary and Cultural Studies in the English Department at Georgetown University In the American Literatures Initiative

Savage Barbecue Andrew Warnes, 2010-12-01 Barbecue is a word that means different things to different people It can be a verb or a noun It can be pulled pork or beef ribs And especially in the American South it can cause intense debate and stir regional pride Perhaps then it is no surprise that the roots of this food tradition are often misunderstood In Savage Barbecue Andrew Warnes traces what he calls America s first food through early transatlantic literature and culture Building on the work of scholar Eric Hobsbawm Warnes argues that barbecue is an invented tradition much like Thanksgiving one long associated with frontier mythologies of ruggedness and relaxation Starting with Columbus s journals in 1492 Warnes shows how the perception of barbecue evolved from Spanish colonists first fateful encounter with natives roasting iguanas and fish over fires on the beaches of Cuba European colonists linked the new food to a savagery they perceived in American Indians ensnaring barbecue in a growing web of racist attitudes about the New World Warnes also unearths the etymological origins of the word barbecue including the early form barbacoa its coincidental similarity to barbaric reinforced emerging stereotypes Barbecue as it arose in early transatlantic culture had less to do with actual native practices than with a European desire to define those practices as barbaric Warnes argues that the word barbecue retains an element of violence that can be seen in our culture to this day Savage Barbecue offers an original and highly rigorous perspective on one of America's most popular food traditions Indigenous Visions Ned Blackhawk, Isaiah Lorado Wilner, 2018-04-24 A compelling study that charts the influence of Indigenous thinkers on Franz Boas the founder of modern anthropology In 1911 the publication of Franz Boas's The Mind of Primitive Man challenged widely held claims about race and intelligence that justified violence and inequality Now a group of leading scholars examines how this groundbreaking work hinged on relationships with a global circle of Indigenous thinkers who used Boasian anthropology as a medium for their ideas Contributors also examine how Boasian thought intersected with the work of major modernist figures demonstrating how ideas of diversity and identity sprang from colonization and empire

Resisting History Barbara Ladd, 2012-01-02 In a major reinterpretation Resisting History reveals that women as subjects of writing and as writing subjects themselves played a far more important role in shaping the landscape of modernism than has been previously acknowledged Here Barbara Ladd offers powerful new readings of three southern writers who reimagined authorship between World War I and the mid 1950s Ladd argues that the idea of a new woman released from some of the traditional constraints of family and community more mobile and participating in new contractual forms of relationality precipitated a highly productive authorial crisis of gender in William Faulkner As new women themselves Zora Neale Hurston and Eudora Welty explored the territory of the authorial sublime and claimed for themselves and other women new forms of cultural agency Together these writers expose a territory of female suffering and aspiration that has been largely ignored in literary histories In opposition to the belief that women's lives and dreams are bound up in ideas of community and pre contractual forms of relationality Ladd demonstrates that all three writers Faulkner in As I Lay Dying Welty in selected short stories and in The Golden Apples and Hurston in Tell My Horse place women in territories where community is threatened or nonexistent and new opportunities for self definition can be seized And in A Fable Faulkner undertakes a related project in his exploration of gender and history in an era of world war focusing on men mourning and resistance and on the insurgences of the masses the feminized others of history in order to rethink authorship and resistance for a totalitarian age Filled with insights and written with obvious passion for the subject Resisting History challenges received ideas about history as a coherent narrative and about the development of U S modernism and points the way to new histories of literary and cultural modernisms in which the work of women shares center stage with the work of men
