Abstract—The authors examined the effects of a 12-week, 100% body weight (BW) resistance training program on the muscle strength, muscle mass, and body composition of 10 sedentary, middle-aged men. The subjects were randomly assigned to a resistance training group (RT) or a control group (CON). The RT group performed a 12-week, 100% BW resistance training program, while the CON group performed no exercise. The RT group showed significant increases in muscle strength, muscle mass, and body composition compared to the CON group. The results suggest that a 12-week, 100% BW resistance training program is effective in improving muscle strength, muscle mass, and body composition in sedentary, middle-aged men.

Abstract—Using the Journal of Management Education as a case study, this study examines the impact of the journal's editorial board on the journal's content. The study finds that the editorial board has a significant impact on the journal's content, and that the journal's content is more likely to be published if it is recommended by the editorial board. The study also finds that the journal's content is more likely to be published if it is recommended by the editorial board.
