Estimation of Willingness-to-Pay Christoph Breidert, 2007-11-03 The work of Christoph Breidert is positioned in a methodologically challenging area of marketing research that is highly relevant to both theoretical investigations and practical apphcations Determination of willingness to pay for products and or services from a customer perspective is crucial for modern approaches to pricing decision making. Based on the increasing availability of individual transaction data (e.g. scanner data, consumer panel data) and data from Smart Cards, remarkable improvements have been achieved in estimating advanced price response models based on observed purchase data. However, empirical price and/or product variations are typically very limited in such historical data, which complicates accurate willingness to pay estimation or makes it even impractical. This is especially true when entirely new products are planned to be introduced or alternative marketing strategies (e.g. product bundling) are considered by the management. While asking customers directly for their willingness or unwillingness to purchase a specific product at the designated price commonly results in unrealistic estimates, experimental survey-based methods turned out to be a promising approach for the indirect measurement of willingness to pay. Among the most prominent techniques within this methodological framework is conjoint or trade-off analysis, which aims at inferring respondents' preference structures based on their reactions to systematically varied profiles of product attributes, mostly including price, in an experimental design. In his work, Christoph Breidert provides a systematic overview of the competing methods that have been and are still applied in today's practical and theoretical pricing research.

Global Sources Telecom Products, 2007 Media and Digital Management Eli M. Noam, 2019-01-23 Being a successful manager or entrepreneur in the media and digital sector requires creativity, innovation, and performance. It also requires an understanding of the principles and tools of management. Aimed at the college market, this book is a short foundational volume on media management. It summarizes the major dimensions of a business school curriculum and applies them to the entire media, media tech, and digital sector. Its chapters cover, in a jargonless, non-technical way, the major functions of management: First, creating a media product, the financing of projects, and the management of technology, HR, production, operations, intellectual assets, and government relations. Second, harvesting the product: created market, research, marketing, pricing, and distribution. And third, the control loop: media accounting and strategy planning. In the process, this book becomes an indispensable resource for those aiming for a career in the media and digital field, both in startups and established organizations. This book is designed to help those aiming to join the media and digital sector to become creative managers and managerial creatives. It aims to make them more knowledgeable, less blinded by hype, more effective, and more responsible. FCS Marketing L2 Irma McKinlay, Maria O'Connor, 2007 The Communications Industries in the Era of Convergence Catherine E.A.
