Hideaki Terashima,Barry S. Hewlett,2016-10-22 This is the first book to examine social learning and innovation in hunter gatherers from around the world More is known about social learning in chimpanzees and nonhuman primates than is known about social learning in hunter gatherers a way of life that characterized most of human history The book describes diverse patterns of learning and teaching behaviors in contemporary hunter gatherers from the perspectives of cultural anthropology ecological anthropology biological anthropology and developmental psychology The book addresses several theoretical issues including the learning hypothesis which suggests that the fate of Homo sapiens and Neanderthals in the last glacial period might have been due to the differences in learning ability It has been unequivocally claimed that social learning is intrinsically important for human beings however the characteristics of human learning remain under a dense fog despite innumerable studies with children from urban industrial cultures Controversy continues on problems such as do hunter gatherers teach If so what types of teaching occur who does it how often under what contexts and so on The book explores the most basic and intrinsic aspects of social learning as well as the foundation of innovative activities in everyday activities of contemporary hunter gatherer people across the earth The book examines how hunter gatherer core values such as gender and age egalitarianism and extensive sharing of food and childcare are transmitted and acquired by children

Chapters are grouped into five sections 1 theoretical perspectives of learning in hunter gatherers 2 modes and processes of social learning in hunter gatherers 3 innovation and cumulative culture 4 play and other cultural contexts of social learning and innovation 5 biological contexts of learning and innovation Ideas and concepts based on the data gathered through an intensive fieldwork by the authors will give much insight into the mechanisms and meanings of learning and education in modern humans

Metabolic Interactions Between Bacteria and Phytoplankton Xavier Mayali, Sonya Dyhrman, Chris Francis, 2018-06-06 The cycling of energy and elements in aquatic environments is controlled by the interaction of autotrophic and heterotrophic processes In surface waters of lakes rivers and oceans photosynthetic microalgae and cyanobacteria fix carbon dioxide into organic matter that is then metabolized by heterotrophic bacteria and perhaps archaea Nutrients are remineralized by heterotrophic processes and subsequently enable phototrophs to grow The organisms that comprise these two major ecological guilds are numerous in both numbers and in their genetic diversity leading to a vast array of physiological and chemical responses to their environment and to each other Interactions between bacteria and phytoplankton range from obligate to facultative as well as from mutualistic to parasitic and can be mediated by cell to cell attachment or through the release of chemicals The contributions to this Research Topic investigate direct or indirect interactions between bacteria and phytoplankton using chemical physiological and or genetic approaches Topics include nutrient and vitamin acquisition algal pathogenesis microbial community structure during algal blooms or in algal aquaculture ponds cell cell interactions chemical exudation signaling molecules and nitrogen exchange These studies span true symbiosis where the interaction is evolutionarily derived as well as those of indirect interactions such as bacterial incorporation of phytoplankton produced organic matter and man made synthetic symbiosis synthetic mutualism
