Regional Forecast and Urban Development Patterns Sonny Conder, 1964 Water Management in Megacities Cecilia Tortajada, Olli Varis, Asit K. Biswas, Jan Lundqvist, 2013-09-13 Efficient and equitable water, wastewater, and stormwater management for the megacities is becoming an increasingly complex task. The special issue will focus on water management in its totality for megacities, including their technical, social, economic, legal, institutional, and environmental dimensions through a series of specially invited case studies from different megacities of the world. At present, around one out of two of the earth's 6.3 billion people live in urban areas. Each year, the world population grows by around 80 millions. Practically all of this growth is urban, primarily due to migration. World's urban population is expected to reach 5 billion by 2030, which is nearly 2.3rd more than in 2000 and would mean that 60% of world's population will live in urban areas. The case studies analysed include some of the most interesting and challenging megacities of this planet: Dhaka, Istanbul, Jakarta, Johannesburg, Mexico City, Riyadh, and São Paulo. They assess different aspects of how water is intermingled in the overall development milieu. The special issue will consider the magnitudes, nature, and extent of the present and future challenges and how these could be met in socially acceptable and cost effective ways The contributors are all acknowledged water experts from different parts of the world This book was previously published as a special issue of the International Journal of Water Resources Development

Social Constructions of Water Quality in South Africa Suvania Naidoo, 2022-05-04 This book details how the water quality of the Blesbokspruit River in Gauteng South Africa was socially constructed by stakeholders and key individuals in the context of acid mine drainage AMD and its treatment Social constructionism is used as the framing for this research to explain how water is intrinsically social Findings presented here show that stakeholders are aware that the changes in the physicality of the Blesbokspruit resulted from human interventions and varied uses of the water over the years Such knowledge among factors such as the historical context of mining current coal mining flows and volumes of water technology used and processes followed information and communication and vested interests influence social constructions of the water quality What counts as the truth about water varies depending on the individual's perspective their purpose and their individual interests Further how one defines water quality influences what treatment processes are preferred in order to improve water quality The book explains why for example a treatment process meant to improve water quality gained a bad reputation by the public because of the South African government's silo approach The book explains how these social constructions are entrenched in power relations between stakeholders regarding AMD treatment and illustrates how power was used to influence decisions to improve the water quality of the Blesbokspruit The case presented in this book offers insights and recommendations for policymakers working in water governance including means to influence social constructions of water quality and ways to clarify roles and responsibilities in pursuit of improved cooperative government information technology and ecological theory with applications that facilitate ecological research and the dissemination of results to scientists and the public Its conceptual framework links ecological entities genomes organisms populations communities ecosystems landscapes with data management analysis and synthesis and communicates new findings to inform decisions by following the course of a loop In comparison to the 2nd edition published in 2006 the 3rd edition of Ecological Informatics has been completely restructured on the basis of the generic conceptual framework provided in Figure 1 It reflects the significant advances in data management analysis and synthesis that have been made over the past 10 years including new remote and in situ sensing techniques the emergence of ecological and environmental observatories novel evolutionary computations for knowledge discovery and forecasting and new approaches to communicating results and informing decisions

Forging Solidarity Astrid von Kotze, Shirley Walters,2017-04-13 Animating this book is a twofold question In what ways are adult and popular educators responding to various harsh economic political cultural and environmental conditions In doing so are they planting seeds of hope for and imaginings of alternative futures which can connect individuals and communities locally and globally to achieve economic ecological and social justice The book illustrates how transformative politics of solidarity often involve actors across vastly different backgrounds Solidarity is therefore a political relationship that is forged through particular struggles situated in place and time across power differentials The authors put popular education to work by describing and analysing their strategies and approaches They do so using accessible language and engaging styles Popular education is a medium for dreaming for imagining other futures It is also essential for countering the Modern Trends in Diatom Identification Gabriel Cristóbal, Saúl Blanco, Gloria Bueno, 2020-05-28 High resolution images of phytoplankton cells such as diatoms or desmids which are useful for monitoring water quality can now be provided by digital microscopes facilitating the automated analysis and identification of specimens Conventional approaches are based on optical microscopy however manual image analysis is impractical due to the huge diversity of this group of microalgae and its great morphological plasticity As such there is a need for automated recognition techniques for diagnostic tools e g environmental monitoring networks early warning systems to improve the management of water resources and decision Non-Western Identity Byron G. Adams, Fons J. R. van de Vijver, 2022-02-02 Identity is a construct strongly rooted and still predominantly studied in Western or WEIRD (Western educated industrialized rich and democratic) contexts e.g. North American and Western European. Only recently has there been more of a conscious effort to study identity in non-Western or non-WEIRD contexts. This edited volume investigates identity from primarily a non-Western perspective by studying non-Western contexts and non-Western minority or immigrant groups living in Western contexts. The contributions a) examine different aspects of identity e.g. personal identity, social identity, online identity as either independent or interrelated constructs; b) consider the associations of these constructs with aspects of intergroup relations, acculturative processes and/or psychological well-being; c) document the advancement in research on identity in underrepresented groups, contexts and regions such as Africa, Asia, Eastern Europe, the Middle East and South America; and d) evaluate different approaches to the study of identity and the implications thereof. This book is intended for cultural or cross-cultural academics, practitioners, educators, social workers, postgraduate students, undergraduate students and scholars interested in studying identity. It provides insight into how identity in non-Western groups and contexts may both be informed by and may inform Western theoretical perspectives.
