Systems Theory for Social Work and the Helping Professions Werner Schirmer, Dimitris Michailakis, 2019-03-21. Social systems occur in many contexts of social work. This book provides an easy-to-read introduction to systems thinking for social workers who will encounter social problems in their professional practice or academic research. It offers new insights and fresh perspectives on this familiar topic and invites creative, critical, and empathetic thinking with a systems perspective. Through introducing systems theory as a problem-oriented approach for dealing with complex interpersonal relations and social systems, this book provides a framework for studying social relations. The authors present a strand of systems theory inspired by sociologist Niklas Luhmann that offers innovative, surprising, and practically relevant understandings of everyday social life, inclusion, exclusion, social problems, interventions, and society in general. Systems Theory for Social Work and the Helping Professions should be considered essential reading for all social work students taking modules on sociology and social policy, as well as students of nursing, medicine, counselling, and occupational health and therapy.

Macroneural Theories in Cognitive Neuroscience William R. Uttal, 2015-07-24. In this book, William R. Uttal continues his analysis and critique of theories of mind. This book considers theories that are based on macroneural responses such as those obtained from fMRI that represent the averaged or cumulative responses of many neurons. The analysis is carried out with special emphasis on the logical and conceptual difficulties in developing a theory but with special attention to some of the current attempts to go from these cumulative responses to explanations of the grand question of how the mind is generated by the brain. While acknowledging the importance of these macroneural techniques in the study of the anatomy and physiology of the brain, Uttal concludes that this macroneural approach is not likely to produce a valid neural theory of cognition because the critical information, the states of the individual neurons involved in brain activity becoming mental activity, is actually lost in the process of summation. Controversial topics are considered in detail, including discussions of empirical, logical, and technological barriers to theory building in cognitive neuroscience.

Global Rhetorics of Science Lynda C. Olman,2023-09-01 With this volume the field of rhetoric of science joins its sister disciplines in history and philosophy in challenging the dominance of Euro American science as a global epistemology The discipline of rhetoric understands world making and community building as interdependent activities that is if we practice science differently we do politics differently and vice versa This wider aperture seems crucial at a time when we are confronted with the limitations of Euro American science and politics in managing global risks such as pandemics and climate change particularly in our most vulnerable communities The contributors to this volume draw on their familiarity with a wide range of global scientific traditions from Australian Aboriginal ecology to West African medicine to Polynesian navigation science to suggest possibilities for reconfiguring the relationship between science and politics to better manage global risks These possibilities should not only inspire scholars in rhetoric and technical communication but should also introduce readers from science and technology studies to some useful new approaches to the problem of decolonizing scenes of scientific practice around the world
