A Farewell to Alms Gregory Clark,2008-12-29 Why are some parts of the world so rich and others so poor Why did the Industrial Revolution and the unprecedented economic growth that came with it occur in eighteenth century England and not at some other time or in some other place Why didn t industrialization make the whole world rich and why did it make large parts of the world even poorer In A Farewell to Alms Gregory Clark tackles these profound questions and suggests a new and provocative way in which culture not exploitation geography or resources explains the wealth and the poverty of nations Countering the prevailing theory that the Industrial Revolution was sparked by the sudden development of stable political legal and economic institutions in seventeenth century Europe Clark shows that such institutions existed long before industrialization He argues instead that these institutions gradually led to deep cultural changes by encouraging people to abandon hunter gatherer instincts violence impatience and economy of effort and adopt economic habits hard work rationality and education The problem Clark says is that only societies that have long histories of settlement and security seem to develop the cultural characteristics and effective workforces that enable economic growth For the many societies that have not enjoyed long periods of stability industrialization has not been a blessing Clark also dissects the notion championed by Jared Diamond in Guns Germs and Steel that natural endowments such as geography account for differences in the wealth of nations A brilliant and sobering challenge to the idea that poor societies can be economically developed through outside intervention A Farewell to Alms may change the way global economic history is understood researchers per million rural residents human capacity productivity publications per PhD full time equivalent researcher and strength of institutions the government effectiveness pillar of the Worldwide Governance Indicators showed substantial variation across countries with the Republic of South Africa Colombia and Ghana scored far higher than countries with similarly sized rural populations such as Liberia Laos Burundi and Afghanistan Initial analysis showed that the index is strongly positively correlated with the Global Food Security Index and negatively correlated with the Global Hunger Index Further work is planned to refine the indicators particularly with regard to the effects of country size population and quality of the underlying data
