Over a period of 200 years, the Greeks spread across Europe and northern Africa, bringing Greek civilization to areas more than 1,500 miles (2,400 km) from Greece.

- Interpreting Maps Analyze the relationship between Greek trading routes and Greek colonies.
- Applying Geography Skills Find a map of the contemporary world. Name all the modern countries where Greece had colonies.

The tyrants used hired soldiers to stay in power, and often built new marketplaces, temples, and walls. These projects made them popular, but by the end of the sixth century B.C., Greeks turned against them because they felt tyranny was an insult to the ideal of law.

Tyranny's role in ending the rule of Greek aristocrats was important because democracy could begin to flourish in some city-states. Democracy is government by the people or rule of the many. Other city-states remained committed to rule by an oligarchy, rule by the few. The differences in these forms of government can be understood by examining the most famous city-states, Sparta and Athens.

Reading Check Evaluating In the polis, are citizens' rights the same as in the United States?

Sparta The powerful city-state of Sparta conquered neighboring peoples, the Laconians and Messenians. To prevent these peoples from rebelling, the Spartans made a conscious decision to create a military state.

Between 800 B.C. and 600 B.C., the lives of Spartans were rigidly organized and controlled—our word spartan means highly self-disciplined. Boys spent their childhood learning military discipline and enrolled in military service at age 20. They might marry, but lived in the military barracks until age 30. At 30, Spartan males could vote in the assembly and live at home, but they stayed in the army until age 60.

All meals were eaten in public dining halls with fellow soldiers. Meals were simple: the famous Spartan black broth consisted of a piece of pork boiled in

II Fundamental Subjects Content Knowledge Classical Literature and Learning in Medieval Irish Narrative Ralph O'Connor,2014 This edited volume will make a major contribution to our appreciation of the importance of classical literature and learning in medieval Ireland and particularly to our understanding of its role in shaping the content structure and transmission of medieval Irish narrative Dr Kevin Murray Department of Early and Medieval Irish University College Cork
From the tenth century onwards Irish scholars adapted Latin epics and legendary histories into the Irish language including the Imtheachta Aeniasa the earliest known adaptation of Virgil s Aeneid into any European vernacular Togail Tro a grand epic reworking of the decidedly prosaic history of the fall of Troy attributed to Dares Phrygius and at the other extreme the remarkable Merugud Uilixis meic Leirtis a fable like retelling of Ulysses s homecoming boiled down to a few hundred lines of lapidary prose Both the Latin originals and their Irish adaptations had a profound impact on the ways in which Irish authors wrote narratives about their own legendary past notably the great saga T in B C ailnge The Cattle Raid of Cooley The essays in this book explore the ways in which these Latin texts and techniques were used. They are unified by a conviction that classical learning and literature were central to the culture of medieval Irish storytelling but precisely how this relationship played out is a matter of ongoing debate. As a result they engage in dialogue with each other using methods drawn from a wide range of disciplines: philology, classical studies, comparative literature, translation studies, and folkloristics. Contributors: Ralph O'Connor is Professor in the Literature and Culture of Britain, Ireland, and Iceland at the University of Aberdeen. Contributors: Abigail Burnyeat, Michael Clarke, Robert Crampton, Helen Fulton, Barbara Hillers, Maire N Mhaonaigh, Ralph O'Connor, Erich Poppe. Time and History in Hegelian Thought and Spirit Sally Sedgwick, 2023. Sally Sedgwick examines a conspicuous feature of Hegel's major works: that they are progressive narratives. She shows the extent to which we can understand Hegel as holding that human reason and the freedom it affords us are determined by the temporal order of nature and history.

relations are regarded as the only deciding factor in Marxist theory and practice and the argument remains This book based on a large number of empirical analyses solved the fundamental problem of historical materialism from the perspective of geographical competition This book holds that after the invention of agriculture in the Neolithic Age species competition was replaced by land based geographic competition which has become the fundamental driving force for the development of human society It not only brought about private ownership and social organizations such as patriarchal clans tribes nationalities classes countries and regions but also made the two poles of the East and the West compete in changing social forms develop productive forces and shape world history after the formation of the Inner Asian nomads This book divides the history of the bipolar competitions between the East and the West after 500 B C into three stages The beginning of the first stage was marked by powerful feudalist China as the power core ending with the rise of capitalist United Kingdom which was the power core of the second stage During this stage with the acquisition of land taxes as its driving force four relatively independent political economic entities were formed from the East to the West with decreasing civilization degree ancient China Inner Asia Islam and Europe referred to as Zone 4 Zone 3 Zone 2 and Zone 1 respectively in this book The second stage with the capitalist UK as the power core ended with the development of socialist China which was the core of power at the third stage The driving force at this stage was the attainment of raw material market Based on the first generation bipolar world pattern two relatively independent political economic entities the capitalist system and the socialist system have been formed from the West to the East This stage was divided into three phases of economic colonization focusing on the realms of public goods natural monopoly and competition This book uses a large amount of historical data to analyze the specific levels of the two stages Despite the fact that factual data support is not sufficient sometimes and some conclusions are open to discussion the theoretical system is complete in line with macro events and the overall framework is convincing By analyzing the first and second stages this book makes a theoretical prediction about the phases and outcomes of the third stage This book holds that the third stage began with the development of socialist China and will end with the realization of world communism and the extinction of geo competitive relations The driving force of this stage is the acquisition of property rights cooperation Based on the second stage bipolar world pattern it will undergo three phases of state owned enterprises cooperation in the realm of competition natural monopoly and public goods The world from east to west will form an entity with no social difference The author believes that under the background of the advantageous West and disadvantageous East in the economic globalization a structural union based on geo economy is the only option Cross border cooperation of state owned enterprises is the only way to break the natural restriction of private economy win the principal status in the world competition solve the problem of sufficient demand at home and abroad enhance the economic and political situation of the working class in various countries and get rid of the dependence on the capitalist colonial system The property right cooperation of state owned enterprises therefore is the fundamental driving force for the future development of human society This book sums up this historical process of economic cooperation as one driving force the transnational property rights cooperation of state owned enterprises three phases first Zones 4 and 3 then Zones 4 3 and 2 and finally Zones 4 3 2 and 1 and three realms first competition then natural monopoly and finally public goods The book was finalized in early 2013 and the Chinese version was published by the Central Compilation Translation Press in March 2014 In September and October 2013 Chinese President Xi Jinping proposed to the world the initiative to jointly build the Silk Road Economic Belt and the 21st Century Maritime Silk Road The Belt and Road Initiative tracing its history back to the ancient Silk Road aims to jointly build a community of shared interests future and responsibilities through economic cooperation featuring political mutual trust economic integration and cultural tolerance Since it is launched the initiative has received extensive attention and recognition from the international community It has achieved great success in solving China s own economic problems providing sufficient supply to countries along the route enhancing endogenous momentum in undeveloped countries improving people s living standard and promoting the preservation and appreciation of surplus assets worldwide We can see that when carrying out the Belt and Road Initiative the property rights cooperation between state owned enterprises of China and other countries along the line has played a crucial role Countries in Zone 3 such as Russia Inner Asia and Pakistan have taken the lead in making significant progress in cooperation with China in Zone 4 Breakthroughs are achieved in competitive fields such as infrastructure energy manufacturing and trade All these have proved the book s scientific predictions about the third stage This book not only develops Marxist theory but also proves the scientific prophecy by the practice of the Belt and Road Initiative Since the Chinese version was issued it has received wide attention and recognition from all sides When preparing the foreign language version the author has dramatically compressed and modified the Chinese version of the content making the book more complete and more readable

Infinite Mobilization Peter

Sloterdijk, 2020-04-22 The core of what we refer to as the project of modernity is the idea that human beings have the power to bring the world under their control and hence it is based on a kinetic utopia the movement of the world as a whole reflects the implementation of our plans for it But as soon as the kinetic utopia of modernity is exposed its seemingly stable foundation cracks open and new problems appear things don t happen according to plan because as we actualize our plans we set in motion other things that we didn t want as unintended side effects We watch with mounting unease as the self perpetuating side effects of modern progress overshadow our plans as a foreign movement breaks off from the very core of the modern project supposedly guided by reason and slips away from us spinning out of control What looked like a steady march towards freedom turns out to be a slide into an uncontrollable and catastrophic syndrome of perpetual mobilization And precisely because so much comes about through our actions these developments turn out to have explosive consequences for our self understanding as we begin to realize that so far from bringing the world under our control we are instead the agents of our own destruction In this brilliant and insightful book Sloterdijk lays out the elements of a new critical theory of modernity understood as a critique of political kinetics shifting the focus of critical theory from production to mobilization and shedding new light on a world facing the growing risk of humanly induced catastrophe
