contested performance of Jewish identity and they each seek to re-enliven that space with reflective accounts of cultural meaning. How do Jews imagine themselves as embodied actors in America? Do cultural obligations limit or expand notions of the self? How should we imagine Jewish thought as a cultural performance? What notions of peoplehood might sustain a vibrant Jewish collectivity in a globalized economy? How do programs in Jewish studies work within the academy? These and other questions engage both Jewish thought and culture, opening space for theoretical works to broaden the range of cultural studies and to deepen our understanding of Jewish cultural dynamics. Thinking Jewish Culture is a work about Jewish cultural identity reflected through literature, visual arts, philosophy, and theology. But it is more than a mere reflection of cultural patterns and choices; the argument pursued throughout Thinking Jewish Culture is that reflective sources help produce the very cultural meanings and performances they purport to analyze.

Youth Identities, Education and Employment Kate Hoskins, 2017-07-18 This book investigates how policy, family background, social class, gender, and ethnicity influence young people's post-16 and post-18 employment and education access. It draws on existing literature alongside new data gathered from a case study in a UK state secondary school to examine how policy changes to the financial arrangements for further and higher education and the changing youth employment landscape have had an impact on young people's choices and pathways. Hoskins explores a number of topics including the role of identity in young people's decision-making, the impact of changes to young people's financial arrangements such as cuts to the Education Maintenance Allowance and increased university fees, and the influence of support from parents and teachers. The book will be of interest to students and researchers of Education and Sociology.

Scientific and technical programs and program management United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on Aeronautical and Space Sciences, 1965 You Don't Have to Do it Alone Richard Axelrod, 2011-08-19 Most people in organizations tend to manage projects either as realists or humanists. You Don't Have to Do It Alone brings together the practical view of the realist and the people-oriented view of the humanist, combining the best of both approaches into one role: the Pragmatic Involver. Covering everything from solving a nagging long-term problem at work that could save a company millions of dollars to launching a community movement to improve local schools, the book shows how involving others in a project while maintaining one's focus on the nuts and bolts details can make big things happen. Using the author's six major questions, each of which is explored in detail, You Don't Have to Do It Alone shows how success can be attained in a project on any scale, from redesigning a manufacturing process at a paper mill to creating an effective youth center. Design History Beyond the Canon Jennifer Kaufmann-Buhler, Victoria Rose Pass, Christopher Wilson, 2019-02-07 Design History Beyond the Canon subverts hierarchies of taste which have dominated traditional narratives of design history. The book explores a diverse selection of objects, spaces, and media ranging from high design to mass-produced and mass-marketed objects, as well as counter-cultural and sub-cultural material. The author's research highlights the often-marginalised role of gender and racial identity in the production and consumption of design the politics which underpins design practice and the role of designed objects as pathways of nostalgia and cultural memory While focused primarily on North American examples from the early 20th century onwards this collection also features essays examining European and Soviet design history as well as the influence of Asia and Africa on Western design practice The book is organised in three thematic sections Consumers Intermediaries and Designers The first section analyses a range of designed objects and spaces through the experiences and perspectives of users The second section considers intermediaries from both technology and cultural industries as well as the hidden labour within the design process itself The final section focuses on designers from multiple design disciplines including high fashion industrial design interior design graphic design and design history pedagogy The essays in all three sections utilise different research methods and a wide range of theoretical approaches including feminist theory critical race theory spatial theory material culture studies science and technology studies and art history Design History Beyond the Canon brings together the most recent research which stretches beyond the traditional canon and looks to interdisciplinary methodologies to better understand the practice and consumption of design
