World War 1 Paper

The Battle of Verdun, 1916

During the time right before World War 1 the Germans showed to be one of the well industrialized nations in the world alongside America. France began to feel threatened by the Germans industrialization and ever growing power. Despite their position as the second largest colonial empire alongside Britain, France felt it could not properly defend itself. In an effort to keep the Germans out they built many sunken forts in the hopes they could not find an easy way past it. The line of fortification extended from the Swiss frontier to the French city of Verdun. Finally the Germans attacked on February 21, 1916 by bombarding the French with heavy artillery. Eventually the Germans after ten months of long combat with the French had to divert their troops towards a different battle ground this put them on the defense. The French took this time to go on the offensive and take back their forts lost during the battle. The end result of the battle had no real major effect on either side for gaining a foothold in either side of the battle front. This battle was important because of the fact it kept the Germans busy for some time but they eventually had to divert their troops elsewhere. Another reason for its importance is the fact that interestingly the battle never resulted in any gaining or losing of land for either side in the end. This helped to protect both the French and its allies from any major lose in the war.
