Lerma,Holly Koncicki,2024-12-26 The over 65 population in the United States is rapidly growing There are currently about 52 million people over 65 years of age in the United States or 16.5% of the U S population This percentage is expected to reach 22% or 70 million by 2050 This means that during the professional lives of current trainees they can expect to see an increasing number of older patients in their practice Average life expectancy in 2004 was 75.2 yr for men and 80.4 yr for women Due to the pandemic average life expectancy has decreased for both men and women with declines differing by race and ethnicity Overall current average life expectancy is 75.1 years for men and 80.5 years for women. During the 1990s the over 85 population was the fastest growing group at 38% growth. This older age group was the largest consumer of healthcare services. By 2060 the number of people age 85 years and older is projected to triple from its current estimate of 6.7 million to 19.0 million. A substantial percentage of this population has some level of disability sensory physical mental or self care. Once a senior develops disability it greatly impacts their ability to self manage their disease and follow a complex medical regimen. Patients with chronic kidney disease CKD usually require complicated medication routines complex dietary restrictions frequent medical visits and receive care from multiple physicians. Thus providing nephrology care for older patients with CKD requires specific knowledge and skills that are unique to this population. Elderly patients will make up a growing proportion of the practice of nephrologists and other providers physicians and allied health providers involved with their care. Clinical practitioners will need to become more comfortable with shouldering the full care of this segment of their patient population and work closely with a geriatrician and internists and family practitioners. As we become more willing to offer life prolonging technologies in this vulnerable group we need to be willing to deal with the consequences of this decision. Finally with their elderly patients clinicians face challenging ethical problems such as whether to withhold or withdraw dialysis. Unless addressed promptly and effectively these ethical issues will greatly increase the stress on both the healthcare provider and family members. A

, 2005. Targeted Regulatory Writing Techniques: Clinical Documents for Drugs and Biologics Linda Fossati Wood, MaryAnn Foote, 2009-01-05. This book describes the authors standard or best practices used in writing regulated clinical documents for the drug and biologics industry. The fundamental premise of this book is that the end documents submitted to a health authority is dependent on the beginning the planning and strategy that go into organizing written documentation. Each regulatory document inherently exists within a constellation of related documents. This book attempts to show the relationships between and among these documents and suggests strategies for organizing and writing these documents to maximize efficiency while developing clear and concise text. At all times and irrespective of applicable laws and guidelines good communication skills and a sense of balance are essential to adequately accurately and clearly describe a product's characteristics. At no time should the reader perceive these suggestions to be the only viable solution to writing regulatory documents nor should the reader expect that these suggestions guarantee product success. The audience for this book is the novice medical writer or those who would like to explore or enhance regulatory writing skills We assume the reader will have a basic understanding of written communication but little experience in applying this skill to the task of regulatory writing Extensive knowledge of science clinical medicine mathematics or regulatory affairs law is not required to use the best practices described in this book
