The engines are fitted with a heat exchanger for thermostatically controlled fresh water cooling of the engine block, cylinder heads and exhaust manifold. The exhaust manifold cooling jacket is designed so that it also cools all the exhaust ports.

The engines are lubricated by means of a pressure lubricating system, where an oil pump supplies lubricating oil to all the lubricating points in the correct quantities at all engine speeds. The pistons on the 70-type engines are cooled by oil fed through special nozzles located in the engine block.

The lower part of the crankcase functions as an oil container.

The fuel system is well protected from interruptions during running by means of effective, replaceable fuel fine filters. On the TAMD60 engines the fuel injection pump is flange mounted while the other engines have the pump fitted on a bracket.
