techniques required to govern such permeability It looks at the emergence of the modern body of biomedicine as a necessary displacement or possibly reconfiguration of earlier plastic views Finally it analyses the returning of plasticity to contemporary postgenomic views and argues that postgenomic plasticity is neither a modernistic plasticity of instrumental management of the body nor a postmodernist celebration of potentialities It is instead a plasticity that disrupts clear boundaries between openness and determination individual and community with important implications for notions of risk responsibility and intervention

Molecular Architecture and Dynamics of Meiotic Chromosomes Ricardo Benavente,Mónica Pradillo,Pedro A. San-Segundo,2024-03-11 Meiosis is a special type of cell division that allows the generation of haploid gametes and is a key process for sexual reproduction of animals plants and fungi Haploidization requires that meiotic cells undergo a series of unique processes namely pairing synapsis recombination and segregation of homologous chromosomes This involves profound meiosis specific changes in the protein composition and architecture of homologous chromosomes as well as of the condensation and folding of chromatin that require a critical timing and regulation Despite this enormous complexity different organisms may achieve haploidization through common molecular mechanisms A major goal of this article collection is to provide an overview of how meiotic chromosomes and their components are critically involved in the mechanisms of haploidization and how dynamic protein complexes yield important structural intermediates and temporal regulation to this process We welcome submissions of original articles mini reviews and review articles dealing with the composition architecture function and regulation of meiotic chromosomes of animals plants and fungi using microscopic biochemical molecular genetic and or omic techniques
