

Summary Response Outline Worksheet

Name: Ashley Chesterfield

A Summary Response is usually composed of 4 parts:

- Introduction-Includes a HOOK statement to draw in your reader's attention. The Intro is a paragraph that introduces the CORE TOPIC- your chosen article, the author, (in the form of a Lead-in), the purpose/main idea/theme, and your basic response--which ends up being your thesis statement. Remember, the introduction serves as a roadmap- you are "introducing" your audience to your topic (in this case, your chosen text) and the ideas you are going to cover in the order you are going to cover them.
- Summary - a section that "Summarizes" the main points. This should have key points- main important points, key terms, etc. The summary is written in 3rd person, using 3rd person pronouns: one, ones, he, him, his, himself, she, her, hers, herself, it, its, itself, they, them, their, theirs, and themselves. Remember to include the who, what, when, where, why, and how.
- Response - a section that allows you to discuss a topic related to the article. This could be an agree/disagree statement ("I found Dweck's point that the growth mindset is never stagnant to be profound."), it could be looking at technique ("Toni Bambara uses spoken language for many purposes.") or it could be some sort of other analysis, like why the author chose to take a certain path with the content, or what was going on in history at the time the text was written ("The Lesson" reflects the economic divide presented in consumer products."). Whatever you choose to write about, you will need to use evidence and support from your chosen text= article. This is where quotes/paraphrasing comes in to back up your responses and then explaining the evidence/support--talking about what they mean. You may use 1st person (I, me, my, /plural: we, us) in this section.
- Conclusion- a paragraph that serves as a reminder to the audience, reintroducing the topic (the article you have chosen and who wrote it), the general idea of the chosen text (brief summary), and what you thought of it (your response). No new information, just a "recap".

Introduction: Use the following box to craft an introduction- remember to include the title, the author, precise verb, and overview line= LEAD IN. Then have a sentence or two that gives the MAIN point/Main Idea/Thesis of the article (not all the details). Finally, have a sentence that shows the type of response you are going to focus on= This means your thesis statement. Only use "I" if it is the agree/disagree type.

1. Write: Have a strong HOOK statement and introduce core reading in the formula of a LEAD IN: 2 sentences minimum

2. Write: Introduce information about core-reading (main idea/overview) usually 2-3 sentences:
