Advancing the Ugandan Economy Ezra Sabiti Suruma, 2014-04-30 Internal conflicts dictatorship and economic disintegration characterized the first twenty five years of Uganda's independence from British colonial rule which culminated in the reign of Idi Amin and a violent civil war The country has since achieved an astounding turnaround of stability and growth Advancing the Ugandan Economy is a first hand look at the remarkable policy changes that took place from 1986 to 2012 and their effect in contrast with the turbulent events after independence Ezra Suruma held several key positions in the Ugandan government during the nation's transition period including minister of finance His insightful recounting of those times demonstrates that African countries can achieve economic stability and sustain rapid growth when they meet at least two interdependent conditions establishing a stable and secure political framework and unleashing entrepreneurialism Suruma also highlights the strategic areas that still require fundamental reform if Uganda is to become a modern state and shares his vision for the future of his country Rarely in African history has so much positive political and economic transformation of a country been achieved in such a short time Suruma's account of the commitment determination vision and dexterity of the Ugandan government holds invaluable lessons in managing the still complex policy challenges facing the African continent

Uganda, 1993 Assesses Uganda's urgent social problems lack of education poor health and high population growth and means for alleviating them This study concludes that if Uganda's social conditions among the world's worst are to improve social spending must be both increased and better allocated Three areas are considered critical Education Although the great majority of children enter primary school by secondary school enrollment drops to only 13 percent overall and to 7 percent for girls This dropout rate is largely attributed to high fees and poor learning conditions The study recommends expanding access to primary education by restructuring government expenditure and private spending Health Uganda's infant mortality is 70 percent higher than the average among low income countries and its death rate is double the average Because the leading causes of illness and death are preventable albeit sometimes with great difficulty the study recommends that health policy be reoriented toward public health and prevention Family planning Given that up to 70 percent of women have a favorable attitude toward family planning the study recommends that the urgent problem of high fertility be immediately addressed by making family planning services widely available The report stresses that government policies should take into account the interrelationships among social problems for example the correlation of low female education to high fertility infant mortality and child malnutrition

Uganda International Monetary, International Monetary Fund. Fiscal Affairs Dept., 2022-11-23 Uganda has achieved significant improvements in public investment management over the last few years The new IMF Public Investment Management Assessment PIMA report shows that Uganda is well ahead of its comparators in many aspects of public investment management in particular in institutional design A number of important measures have been undertaken including giving the Development Committee a strong role as a gatekeeper for new investment proposals the establishment of the Projects Analysis and Public Investment Department and development of guidelines and manuals to improve the quality of project preparation and appraisal Many reforms are fairly recent and are not fully institutionalized so there is a clear need to continue and to further strengthen public investment management in Uganda The IMF and other development partners are active partners to the government in pursuing these reforms The Bloomsbury Handbook of Prison Education Erin S. and vocational training The Role of Intergovernmental Fiscal Transfers in Improving Education Outcomes Samer Al-Samarrai, The World Bank, Blane Lewis, 2021-07-23 The majority of the world's children live in countries where local governments are responsible for the provision of basic education services. Although subnational governments manage their own education systems, they often rely on transfers from the central government for funding. The main purpose of this study is to assess how these fiscal transfers affect public funding for education and how they ultimately affect student schooling and learning outcomes. Through a careful analysis of how fiscal transfers have affected education systems in different contexts, the investigation develops a set of principles to support improvements in the design and implementation of transfer systems with a specific focus on the provision of education services. The study is centered on seven country case studies that aim to answer a set of common research questions using a similar approach. Country case studies were conducted in Brazil, Bulgaria, China, Colombia, Indonesia, Sudan, and Uganda. The analysis shows that fiscal transfer mechanisms can improve the adequacy of public education spending, reduce spending inequalities between regions, and improve spending efficiency. Moreover, the study highlights that carefully designed and implemented transfer systems can help raise overall education outcomes and reduce education inequality. This publication was funded by a grant from the Results in Education for All Children (REACH) trust fund at the World Bank. REACH is supported by the government of Germany through the Federal Ministry for Economic Cooperation and Development, the government of Norway through NORAD, and the government of the United States of America through the U.S. Agency for International Development.

Coming of Age Kamau, Kiarie, Mitambo, Kiriimi, 2016-05-03 The sixteen chapters in this book form a Festschrift in honour of Henry Chakava, the distinguished Kenyan publisher. With a Forward by Tanzanian publisher Walter Bgoya, his long-time collaborator in furthering the causes of independent African publishing, the topics cover the full range of issues in which he has been central over more than forty years. His notable achievements include the first local buy-out of a British multinational publishing house, being one of the founders of African Books Collective and the African Publishers Network, and participation in international councils such as the Bellagio Publishing Network. Amongst the contributors are prominent Kenyan authors Ngugi wa Thiong'o, Simon Gikandi, and Micere Githae Mugo. Kenyan colleagues from the book trade, world-class collaborators in Uganda and Nigeria, and some international colleagues. The greatest range of the contributors are from within Africa. There are subject-specific chapters on such issues as training, copyright, publishing in the digital age, and an overview of publishing at Codesria, including the vexed issue of marginalisation of African language publishing.

What Makes Africans Laugh? Reflections of an Entrepreneur in Humour, Media and Culture Tumusiime, James R., 2014-06-12 What Makes Africans Laugh is a critique of the African's attitude towards indigenous craftsmanship, knowledge, and culture, especially in the post-independence era. It is woven around the life of James Tumusiime, who has been a campaigner for African self-reliance in the cultural industry, humour, media, and historiography. Although Tumusiime draws many of his examples from Uganda and Kenya, the story is familiar to most people.

Jacob, J. Hawkins, 2011-09-26 The complementary areas of comparative international and development education occupy a critical part of the landscape in educational policy debates in a global context This volume brings together a distinguished group of international scholars and practitioners who focus on key policy issues in a variety of national settings throughout the regions of Asia Pacific Africa the Middle East Europe North America and Latin America The topics they address are critical for the future of education in a globalized context and include issues such as social justice quality assurance governance access and equity marketization and the role of new media and technology among others Évaluations nationales des acquis scolaires, Volume 1 Vincent Greaney, Thomas Kellaghan, 2015-06-29 La connaissance remplace progressivement les matières premières et la main d'œuvre en tant que ressource clé du développement économique la disponibilité de savoirs et savoir-faire humains est cruciale pour déterminer le taux de développement économique d'un pays et sa compétitivité sur le marché international L'utilisation croissante de la capacité nationale d'évaluation a permis aux ministères de l'éducation de décrire les niveaux nationaux des acquis des élèves dans les principales disciplines et de comparer ceux des principaux sous-groupes tels que les garçons et les filles les groupes ethniques les élèves des milieux urbains et ruraux et ceux des établissements publics et privés Cela leur a également fourni des données probantes pour confirmer ou infirmer les affirmations d amélioration ou de dégradation des normes de performance des élèves dans le temps. En dépit de l'accroissement de l'activité de valuation, la valeur potentielle des données fournies par les valuations est encore mal reconnue et les compétences requises pour mener une valuation techniquement solide continuent de manquer. Lorsque les pays réalisent une valuation nationale ou participent à une valuation internationale, l'information ainsi recueillie n'est pas souvent complètement exploitée pour valuer les niveaux nationaux de performance dans l'éducation. Les critères, les objectifs et les caractéristiques des valuations nationales ainsi que les questions liées à la conception, la mise en œuvre, l'analyse et la production des rapports. Ce volume décrit également les principales valuations internationales régionales et nationales dans un grand nombre de pays. Cet ouvrage sera d'un intérêt certain pour les pouvoirs publics nationaux, régionaux et locaux, les institutions de recherche et les universités.

Improving Schools Through Teacher Development S.E. Anderson, 2022-03-26 This book presents a story of school improvement activity in East Africa from 1985 to 2000 which focused on sustained teacher development. The core of the book consists of six evaluations of school and district wide school improvement projects (SIPs) supported by the Aga Khan Foundation in Tanzania, Kenya and Uganda. The case studies present an evolving body of knowledge about the successes and challenges of a comprehensive approach to school improvement grounded in a common set of strategic principles. The strategic principles embody the belief that the chances for quality improvement in teaching and learning are greater when change efforts are school based, involve whole schools as the unit of change, emphasize the ongoing professional development of teachers, attend to school management and organizational conditions affecting the capacity of teachers to implement change, prepare for the institutionalization of organizational structures and processes that enable continuous school development and evolve through partnerships among relevant education stakeholders. The book concludes with commentaries by international experts in school improvement and teacher development on the SIP project designs, implementation and outcomes, and on lessons that can be drawn from the projects and their evaluations for school improvement policy, practice and theory in developing and developed countries around the world. Lugalla: Rethinking Teacher Education, 2023-06-27 Rethinking Teacher Education: Improvement, Innovation and Change is the result of the conference organised by The Aga Khan University Institute for Educational Development East Africa (AKU IED EA) on education in Uganda in 2017. The Conference gathered participants from nine countries to deliberate on a cross section of factors regarding teacher education in the region and landscaping the same on global perspectives. The choice of the conference theme was inspired by a need to consider new systems, policies, structures and reforms to help drive sustainable education for the development of nations in the East African region. A variety of contributors participated from across the education landscape and included researchers working in higher education, practitioners such as teachers in schools, tutors, instructors in colleges and lecturers and professors at universities. Also contributing were non-governmental organisations with interests in education and student learning outcomes, civil society organisations whose interests navigate the role
