Assessment in Geographical Education: An International Perspective

Theresa Bourke, Reece Mills, Rod Lane, 2022-02-27 In recent years there has been increased attention paid to the importance of assessment in Geographical Education the chosen subject for this book Assessment is an important tool for collecting information about student learning and for providing timely data to inform key stakeholders including students teachers parents and policymakers To be effective assessment needs to be valid reliable and fair Validity is about ensuring that we assess what we claim we are assessing Reliability is about measuring performance and understanding in a consistent way Without validity and reliability assessment is unlikely to provide equitable opportunities for students to demonstrate what they know and can do As geography educators it is therefore important that we identify the core concepts and skills in geography that we want students to master We need a clear understanding of what the progression of learning looks like for each concept and skill so we can develop fit for purpose assessments that track and improve student learning While there is a substantial literature on evidence based assessment in secondary school contexts research exploring best practice assessment in geography is rare This is a concern given the distinctive nature of geography and the important role of assessment in the learning process This scholarly collection seeks to address this issue by connecting research in educational assessment with the domain of geography The chapters are written by leading researchers in Geographical Education from across the globe These chapters provide examples of innovation through the collective voices of geography teacher educator scholars from across Australia USA South Korea Germany Switzerland and Singapore What unifies the work in this book is that each chapter focuses on a key feature of the discipline of geography providing scholarly examples of evidence based practices for assessing student s knowledge and skills

Disrupting Shameful Legacies Claudia Mitchell, Relebohile

Moletsane,2018-08-14 Much has been written in Canada and South Africa about sexual violence in the context of colonial legacies particularly for Indigenous girls and young women While both countries have attempted to deal with the past through Truth and Reconciliation Commissions and Canada has embarked upon its National Inquiry on Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women and Girls there remains a great deal left to do Across the two countries history legislation and the lived experiences of young people and especially girls and young women point to a deeply rooted situation of marginalization Violence on girls and women s bodies also reflects violence on the land and especially issues of dispossession What approaches and methods would make it possible for girls and young women as knowers and actors especially those who are the most marginalized to influence social policy and social change in the context of sexual violence Taken as a whole the chapters in Disrupting Shameful Legacies Girls and Young Women Speaking Back through the Arts to Address Sexual Violence which come out of a transnational study on sexual violence suggest a new legacy one that is based on methodologies that seek to disrupt colonial legacies by privileging speaking up and speaking back through the arts and visual practice to challenge the situation of sexual violence At the same time the fact that so many of the authors of the various chapters are themselves Indigenous young people from either Canada or South Africa also suggests a new legacy of leadership for change
