

A woman with brown hair in a bun, wearing a yellow Victorian-style dress with a ruffled collar and a full skirt, is standing on a staircase with a dark blue railing. She is looking down at a green fan she is holding. The background is a light blue sky with some clouds. The scene is set in a room with a window on the left.

Salomon,2015-06-23 The great Renaissance artist Andrea del Sarto 1486 1530 rivals Leonardo da Vinci as one of history s most accomplished draftsmen Moving beyond the graceful elegance of his contemporaries such as Raphael and Fra Bartolommeo he brought unprecedented realism to his drawings through the rough and rustic use of chalk in his powerfully rendered life and compositional studies With an immediacy few other Renaissance artists possess del Sarto s work has proven to be inspirational and compelling to later audiences with admirers such as Degas and Redon This lavishly illustrated book reveals del Sarto s dazzling inventiveness and creative process presenting fifty core drawings on paper together with a handful of paintings The first publication to look to del Sarto s working practice through a close examination of his art from across all the world s major collections this volume analyzes new studies of his panel underdrawings as well The depth and breadth of its research make this book an important contribution to the study of del Sarto and Florentine Renaissance workshop practice This volume is published to accompany an exhibition on view at the J Paul Getty Museum from June 23 through September 13 2015 and at the Frick Collection in New York from October 6 2015 though January 10 2016

Bibliografía española ,2004-10 Bibliografia nazionale italiana ,1983 New York Magazine ,1979-06-25 New York magazine was born in 1968 after a run as an insert of the New York Herald Tribune and quickly made a place for itself as the trusted resource for readers across the country With award winning writing and photography covering everything from politics and food to theater and fashion the magazine s consistent mission has been to reflect back to its audience the energy and excitement of the city itself while celebrating New York as both a place and an idea Environmental History in the Pacific World J.R. McNeill,2022-03-01 This volume brings together a set of key articles from the last 30 years pertaining to the environmental history of the Pacific basin It aims to treat the islands and waters of the Pacific as well as the lands around the Rim from New Zealand to Japan to California to Chile and is the first work of environmental history to take this inclusive view of the Pacific basin The focus is mainly on recent centuries but as environmental history requires at times the work also takes the very long view of millennia Several of the articles seek to bring a broad Pacific perspective to bear on their subjects while others use Pacific basin examples to try to establish broader theoretical points of interest to all who are drawn to the study of the interactions between nature and culture The book includes a bibliography of Pacific basin environmental history and an introduction that aims to sketch the contours and possible future directions of the field

Museums: in Search of a Usable Future Alma Stephanie Wittlin, 1970 This comprehensive study offers an analysis of the museum as a public institution provides an account of its historical roots and gives a forecast of its future In the Foreword S Dillon Ripley Secretary of the Smithsonian Institution states Museums are becoming more and more important For one thing as Dr Wittlin points out museums provide immediate encounters with authenticity or a reasonable simulacrum of it They provide new ways of teaching and learning and an introduction to processes of lifelong education now a priority for everyone An earlier book by Dr Wittlin The Museum Its History and Its Tasks in Education was the direct predecessor of the present work The historical chapters have been expanded and whereas the former volume ended with the outbreak of the Second World War this study considers the achievements that took place in all parts of the world from 1945 up to the present time The author's earlier work published in England gained international acclaim as a definitive publication in the field and was praised for its philosophical depth historical breadth and perceptive insights into the character of a complex institution Museological events of a scope without precedent are today in a stage of drafting and building Dr Wittlin examines all aspects of a museum's function from the traditional functions as a depository a center of research and an educational agency to the newer perhaps peripheral functions that the author summarizes under the term cultural center All these purposes though valid must be constantly reexamined in the light of the extending frontiers of knowledge rising standards of general education and of access to new techniques based on scientific advances In a chapter on a Twelve Point Program for Museum Renewal the main broad facets of the institution are clearly and concisely discussed Dr Wittlin begins with a definition of the term museum established by the International Council of Museums and describes problems of institutional identity and funding training of personnel and determining visitor population She also points up the fallacies in the assumption that mere exposure to exhibits results in learning and stimulation This book is an impressive and scholarly presentation of the museum pictured through its past and examined in its present functioning as well as what it may offer in the foreseeable future It is also entertainingly written The hottest current issue as Dr Wittlin calls it is ecology the study of the interdependence of all living things not only among themselves but with the organic environment The museum's role in this issue is postulated and discussed The work is amply illustrated
