

AP United States History Study Guide/Period Timeline References

Designed for the modified 2020 examination by Kyle Vallone

Please contact the creator if you find any errors or believe a crucial event should be added and please provide credit if reposting or sharing the link elsewhere.

All period timelines are two pages and are designed to print double-sided. The margins should work on most printers, though the outside borders may be cut off if you do not have borderless printing. Please note that some periods overlap and the timelines during the overlaps place emphasis on what is outlined in the Course and Exam Description for each period (for instance, Period 5 focuses on Reconstruction and Period 6 focuses on industrialization during their twelve-year overlap). Because of the sheer number of important events in Period 7, I have split it into two separate reference sheets, one covering imperialism, progressivism, and World War I, the other covering the "Jazz Age," Great Depression, New Deal, and World War II. I have done my best to compile as many notable events and important happenings that highlight political, social, and economic themes in the periods that may help provide contextualization or outside information for this year's Document Based Question, but I hope these resources will be able to help others beyond just this year, too. This period anchor sheet I found is also very helpful as a quicker reference on the AP exam if you feel you don't need event descriptions or dates, I don't have the original source: Period Reference Sheet.

Inspired by: Reddit user u/Blobtop1's period notes (Period 3, Period 4, Period 5, Period 6, Period 7), Noor Zughairi's APUSH Review, and Sanjay Janardhan's APUSH Timeline and Resources (I contributed some events/verbiage to this one, so some event summaries may be similar)

This resource is not meant to save your score on the AP United States History examination. Please carefully review the updated rubric provided by the College Board to know where your points are coming from (you can't just reference the name of an event in passing to get the contextualization or outside information points, you need to tie them back to your argument and can't use the same historical evidence for both points) and make sure to be watchful of your timing during the examination if you do choose to reference this document.
