their firesides for existence and yet it had been hardly felt in the settlements Such is the effect of the quiet steady eternal warfare on the border It is never felt never hardly heard of till the Indians become the aggressors which is seldom indeed The old lady came at last and sat down with her knitting and a ball of yarn in her lap She talked of the price of butter and eggs and said they should soon be well to do and prosperous in their new home I retired early and rising with the dawn left a gold coin on the table and rode rapidly toward the city I was not satisfied with my desperate and bloody undertaking As I passed little farm houses with vines and blossoms and children about the doors I began to wonder how many kind and honest people were to be ruined in my descent upon the settlements The city I found assailable from every side There was not a soldier within ten miles Fifty men could ride into the place hold it long enough to fire it in a hundred places and then ride out unhindered It seems a little strange that I met kindness and civility now when I did not want it Of course I was utterly unknown and having taken care from the first to dress in the plainest and commonest dress of the time there was not the least suspicion of my name or mission As I rode back the farmers were gathering in their grain On the low marshy plains of Shasta river they were mowing and making hay I heard the mowers whetting their Unwritten History: Life Amongst the Modocs Joaquin Miller, 2024-01-12 Reprint of the original first published in 1874 Unwritten History Joaquin Miller, 1992

the brutality poverty and vicious competition among fellow immigrants desperate for work But Steinbeck is only one successor to a rich and esteemed literary tradition in California Drawing on history and cultural theory The End of Eden traces the rise of the California social novel its embrace of the agrarian dream and its ambivalence about technology and the development it enables It relies on various cultural conceptions of space among them the American Public Land Survey the source of the grid allotments shaping homestead claims Mexican era dispos and Native American traditions that defined a fluid relationship between human beings and the land This animation of four California social novels of the late eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries demonstrates how conflicts over space and place signify cultural conflict It is deeply informed by the author s understanding of historical land issues The works include Joaquin Miller s Unwritten History Life Amongst the Modocs Helen Hunt Jackson s Ramona Frank Norris The Octopus and Mary Austin s The Ford Miller s Unwritten History Life Amongst the Modocs and Jackson s Ramona examine the tragic but inevitable consequences for native people of making space inhabited already by Native American and Hispanic populations safe for Americans who pursue the agrarian dream without regard to its effects upon those who claim prior tenure on the land Norris The Octopus and Austin s The Ford examine the murkier story of trying to preserve or to reclaim the agrarian dream when confronted by the unchecked materialist interests of American capitalism A wide reaching interdisciplinary approach to various cultural conceptions of space The End of Eden provides a crucial understanding of the conflicts depicted in social novels that lament the ways in which land is allocated and developed the ways in which American agrarianism and its promise of local sustainable land use is undermined and how it applies to contemporary California In an era where California confronts yet again the complicated patterns of land use fracking water use and water rights coastal regulation and management and agribusiness this groundbreaking work provides an ever relevant context
