To which are subjoined a history and directory of Newcastle-upon-Tyne [&c.]. Whellan Francis and co, 1894 Garden Suburbs of Tomorrow? Martin Crookston, 2013-12-04 Named one of the Top 10 books about council housing the Guardian online Faced with acute housing shortages the idea of new garden cities and suburbs is on the UK planning agenda once again but what of the garden suburbs that already exist Over the first six decades of the twentieth century councils across Britain created a new and optimistic form of housing the cottage estates of corporation suburbia By the early 1960s these estates provided homes with gardens for some 3 million mainly working class households It was a mammoth achievement But because of what then happened to council housing over the later years of the century this is not very often appreciated In Garden Suburbs of Tomorrow Martin Crookston suggests that making the most of the assets which this housing offers is a positive story it can be positive for housing policy for councils and their place making endeavours and for the residents of the estates This is especially important when all housing market and development options are so constrained and likely to remain so for the next decade or more Following an examination of what the estates of corporation suburbia are and what they are like there follow chapters on specific examples from different parts of the country on how they are affected by the workings of the housing market and then not unconnectedly on how attitudes to this socially built stock have evolved Then the final chapters try to draw out the potentials and to suggest what future we might look for in corporation suburbia in the twenty first century
