French Sports Films Jonathan Ervine, 2025-12-18 Examining French sports films from a cinematic and socio cultural perspective this book takes a close look at the characteristics that separate French sports films from Hollywood sports films and sports films produced in other countries and asks what those characteristics can tell us about wider French culture and society Focusing in particular on depictions of masculinity in French sports films and how they have evolved over time this book argues that recent decades have seen a shift away from focusing on macho males towards a greater exploration of male vulnerability depictions that go beyond the outcome of sporting contests and relate to wider issues such as what it means to be a man partner father or son It also argues that many of these films have offered only superficial engagement with issues concerning women's participation in sport and considers the extent to which race ethnicity and social class have also shaped the French sports film Filling a significant gap in the literature on French cinema and the study of sports films in general this is fascinating reading for anybody with an interest in sport cinema or French history culture and society
