Airline companies apply these models to optimize their use of planes and staff. NASA has been using them for years to optimize their use of limited resources. Oil companies use them to optimize their refinery operations. Small and medium sized businesses use linear programming to solve a huge variety of problems often involving resource allocation. In my study a typical product mix problem in a manufacturing system producing two products each product consists of two sub assemblies is solved for its optimal solution through the use of the latest versions of MATLAB having the command `simlp` which is very much like `linprog`. As analysts we try to find a good enough solution for the decision maker to make a final decision. Our attempt is to give the mathematical description of the product mix optimization problem and bring the problem into a form ready to call MATLAB's `simlp` command. The objective of this study is to find the best product mix that maximizes profit. The graphs obtained using MATLAB commands give the shaded area enclosed by the constraints called the feasible region which is the set of points satisfying all the constraints. To find the optimal solution we look at the lines of equal profit to find the corner of the feasible region which yields the highest profit. This corner can be found out at the farthest line of equal profit which still touches the feasible region. The most critical part is the sensitivity analysis using Excel Solver and Parametric Analysis using computer software which allows us to study the effect on optimal solution due to discrete and continuous change in parameters of the LP model including to identify bottlenecks. We have examined other options like product outsourcing, one time cost, cross training of one operator, manufacturing of hypothetical third product on underutilized machines and optimal sequencing of jobs on machines. Managerial Decision Modeling Nagraj (Raju) Balakrishnan, Barry Render, Ralph Stair, Charles Munson, 2017-08-07 This book fills a void for a balanced approach to spreadsheet based decision modeling. In addition to using spreadsheets as a tool to quickly set up and solve decision models, the authors show how and why the methods work and combine the user's power to logically model and analyze diverse decision making scenarios with software based solutions. The book discusses the fundamental concepts, assumptions, and limitations behind each decision modeling technique, shows how each decision model works, and illustrates the real world usefulness of each technique with many applications from both profit and nonprofit organizations. The authors provide an introduction to managerial decision modeling, linear programming models, modeling applications, and sensitivity analysis, transportation assignment and network models, integer goal and nonlinear programming models, project management decision theory, queuing models, simulation modeling, forecasting models, and inventory control models.
