Proceedings of the 4th International Conference on the Future of Asean 2023 (ICoFA 2023) Nursyamilah Annuar,Sabiroh Md Sabri,Ismailaili Ismail,Mahyudin Ahmad,Farah Lina Azizan,Nurul Labanihuda Abdull Rahman,Nurwahida Fuad,2023-07-26 This is an open access book ASEAN countries are diverse with GDP per capita ranging from about USD1 297 in Myanmar a lower middle income country to USD64 041 in Singapore a high income advanced economy World Economic Outlook Database IMF April 2019 ASEAN marked its 50th anniversary in 2017 with relatively successful and prosperous development in five decades with establishment of the ASEAN Economic Community in 2015 as one the key milestones as well as the achievements of Millennium Development Goals 2015 Building on the past successes via Millennium Development Goals 2015 especially in areas such as poverty eradication better health outcomes and quality education ASEAN countries are poised to make a more inclusive progress towards the newly adopted development agenda of Sustainable Development Goals 2030 SDG 2030 which cover a wider set of interlinked development objectives under its 17 goals The economic dynamism of the ASEAN region on the back of its strong income growth continuous structural transformation and infrastructure improvements is expected to support sustainable development in the region From the IMF Report September 2018 most ASEAN countries with their continued income growth and strong policy efforts are on track to eradicate absolute poverty by 2030 while some of these countries are already doing well in terms of gender equality Similarly improvement in universal primary education completion is one of the key progress areas made by the majority of ASEAN countries Despite these achievements challenges persist hence we need to ensure a more inclusive and environmentally sustainable development in the region Income inequality remains relatively high in several countries and the shift towards manufacturing has strained environmental sustainability in the region Furthermore the other remaining development challenges call for a more comprehensive and integrated approach via the intra ASEAN initiatives

The Private Side of the Canton Trade, 1700-1840 Paul A. Van Dyke,Susan E. Schopp,2018-03-13 It is not often recognized that China was one of the few places in the early modern world where all merchants had equal access to the market This study shows that private traders regardless of the volume of their trade were granted the same privileges in Canton as the large East India companies All of these companies relied to some extent on private capital to finance their operations Without the investments from individuals the trade with China would have been greatly hindered Competitors large and small traded alongside each other while enemies traded alongside enemies Buddhists Muslims Catholics Protestants Parsees Armenians Hindus and others lived and worked within the small area in the western suburbs of Canton designated for foreigners Cantonese shopkeepers were not allowed to discriminate against any foreign traders In fact the shopkeepers were generally working in a competitive environment providing customer oriented service that generated goodwill friendship and trust These contributed to the growth of the trade as a whole While many private traders were involved in smuggling opium others such as Nathan Dunn were much opposed to it The case studies in this volume demonstrate that fortunes could be made in China by trading in legitimate items just as successfully as in illegitimate ones which tellingly suggests that the rapid spread of opium smuggling in China could be a result of inadequate rather than excessive regulation by the Qing government For this absorbing book Van Dyke and Schopp have convened excellent scholars junior and senior to throw new light on the foreign merchants outside the East India companies who shaped China's engagement with the world at least as much as the companies men did if not more The slumbering field of foreign trade in Qing China has come back to life Timothy Brook University of British Columbia Much scholarship on the China trade has focused on the activities of the vast state sponsored companies This book flips the script Now we know that right under the noses of those economic behemoths smaller private traders from Europe America and China were quietly reshaping the trade with their innovation networking grit and dreams John R Haddad The Pennsylvania State University What we learn and when we learn it: sensitive periods in development Etienne De Villers-Sidani, Virginia Penhune, 2014-11-21 The impact of training or experience is not the same at all points in development Children who receive music lessons or learn a second language before age 7-8 are more proficient as adults Early exposure to drugs or trauma makes people more likely to become addicted or depressed later in life Rat pups exposed to specific frequencies from 9-13 days post partum show expanded cortical representations of these frequencies Young birds must hear and copy their native song within 1-2 months of birth or they may never learn it at all These are examples of sensitive periods developmental windows where maturation and specific experience interact to produce differential long term effects on the brain and behavior While still controversial evidence for the existence of sensitive periods has grown as has our understanding of the underlying mechanisms of brain plasticity Behavioral evidence from studies of language psychopathology or vision in humans has been complemented by evidence elucidating molecular gene and hormonal mechanisms in animals It has been proposed that sensitive periods can be both opened and closed by specific experience and that there are multiple overlapping sensitive periods that occur throughout development as functions come on line It is also likely that experience dependent behavioral or brain plasticity accrued during one sensitive period can serve as a scaffold on which later experience and plasticity can build Based on current knowledge there are a number of broad questions and challenges to be addressed in this domain these include generating new information about the neurobiological mediators of structural and functional changes proposing models of brain development that will better predict when sensitive periods should occur and what functions are implicated investigation of the interaction between experience during a sensitive period and pre existing individual differences and the relationship between experience during a sensitive period and on going experience The goal of this Research Topic is to bring together scientists in different fields whose work addresses these issues including animal and human developmental neuroscience language and cognitive development education developmental psychopathology and sensory neuroscience
